

PARLIAMENT TO RECESS TILL JAN. 30

Thousands Attend Remembrance Day Ceremony Massed Crowds At War Memorial Pay Tribute To Fallen

Returned Comrades, Military, Naval, Militia and Patriotic Organizations Joined By Citizens in Service; Many Wreaths Placed in Memory of Men Who Made Supreme Sacrifice

Massed in thousands around Victoria's War Memorial in the Parliament Buildings' grounds, Great War veterans, provincial and civic dignitaries, military, naval and militia representatives, delegates from patriotic organizations and citizens generally did honor to the memory of the men sacrificed in the Great War, as the Capital commemorated the fourteenth anniversary of Armistice Day. With bared heads bowed to the cold breeze, they stood in silence, standards lowered between the two saluting guns, and joined in the singing of hymns before and after laying wreaths at the foot of the Memorial.

Drawn up in rank before the monument, squads representing the Canadian Legion and ex-service organizations 1,000 strong, the Princess Patricia, Canadian Light Infantry, the Canadian Navy, Fifth Artillery Brigade, sixteenth Canadian Scottish and the bands of the latter three on parade, flanked a row of provincial and civic dignitaries, including Premier S. F. Tolmie and cabinet ministers and Mayor David Leeming and the City Council.

One Out of Five Suffer From 'Flu'

"Bad Cold" Epidemic Decimates Schools, Office Staffs and Businesses

"Not Serious, But Requires Care" Warns Medical Health Officer

Have you had the "flu"? Prompted by the hearing of this question repeatedly during the last few weeks, a Times reporter to-day made an attempt to discover the far-reaching nature of the mild influenza, or bad cold, epidemic, which has swept the city this fall. There are no accurate statistics available on the subject because it is not a serious wave of "flu". Officially, the hospitals know very little about it since they have not been called upon to handle the cases. The fact remains, however, that office staffs and businesses have been considerably disrupted in the last month as one after another of their members have "gone down" with it.

An idea of the extent to which the "bad cold" attacks have reached families was gained from school attendance figures. Between 200 and 250 pupils of the Victoria School have been absent this week on that account. This is out of a registration of about 1,200, so it runs between 20 and 25 per cent.

Britannia Copper Industry Faces Close-down as Regulations Bar British Market

Premier Tolmie and Ministers Alarmed as Ottawa Conference Proves Boomerang

Premier Tolmie and his ministers to-day faced the likelihood of the Howe Sound copper industry being closed down as a result of the coming into force of the regulations under the recent Imperial Economic Conference at Ottawa.

The closing down of the copper plant will add around 2,000 to Britannia Beach, alone to the unemployed total of British Columbia, it was pointed out.

Under the Imperial Conference regulations, B.C. copper will be about out of the British market because the copper from here passes through some United States plants, it was explained. The preference regulations require that only copper from 100 per cent. empire channels is eligible for the British preference of four cents a pound.

Hon. W. A. McKenzie, Minister of Mines, and others in the cabinet, are making frantic appeals to Ottawa to have something done to head off the British regulations, so that the B.C. industry can survive, and jobs be held here for some thousands of men. The Premier and his ministers are now appealing to Ottawa to hold up the imperial trade agreements.

"IRISH" PREFERENCE
"We thought we were going to get something out of Ottawa, but this copper preference is turning out to be a sort of Irish preference as far as we are concerned and is simply wiping us out," said one of the members. "We did not expect we were to be the victims of the boomerang."

KING GEORGE AT CENOTAPH

Lays Wreath at Armistice Day Ceremony in London For First Time Since 1928

Canadian Press
London, Nov. 11.—A solemnly majestic ceremony at the Cenotaph here this morning marked Great Britain's Armistice Day remembrance.

King George, for the first time since his illness which followed a chill at the 1928 Armistice Day ceremonies, laid a wreath at the base of the symbol.

His second son, the Duke of York, laid another.

Queen Mary took no part in the service, but watched from an overlooking window.

A brigade of red-coated guards in their huge bearskin caps were drawn up in precision around the Cenotaph, forming a hollow square. Within were the King and the Duke, representatives of the army, navy and various military

W. E. DITCHBURN PASSES AWAY

Former Indian Commissioner For B.C. Was Noted Lacrosse Ace in His Youth

Under His Regime of Twenty Years Here Conditions of Native Races Was Elevated

William E. Ditchburn, who retired a few months ago after holding the office of Indian Commissioner for B.C. for more than twenty years, and who in his early days was one of the outstanding lacrosse players of Canada, died early to-day at his home, 253 Linden Avenue.

He had been ailing for several years. During the last summer the decline in his health continued and he sought to recuperate by spending most of his time at his summer home at Shawangwan Lake.

Surviving him are his wife, one daughter, Mrs. Helen Virginia "Peggy" Chisholm of Winnipeg; one son, Raymond B., living at home; and one sister, in Vancouver.

Mr. Ditchburn was born in Hereford, England, on December 11, 1862. When he was six years old he was brought to Canada by his parents, who settled in Toronto. His father was a photographer, but after a short time he was appointed telegrapher and a station agent on the old Coburg, Peterborough and Marmora Railroad, later the Grand Trunk. His post was at Harwood, Ont., seventy-four miles east of Toronto. The family lived at Harwood a few years, but the year 1874 found them back in Toronto where he took up printing as his trade.

Associated Press
Camaguey, Cuba, Nov. 11.—Secretary of Public Works Onetti, who returned to-day from Santa Cruz del Sur, Camaguey province, said there were more than 1,000 dead and more than 700 injured at that place alone as a result of the hurricane. He said not a single house was standing at Santa Cruz.

"I have never seen such a tragedy in all my life," said Secretary Onetti. "Damage is incalculable since the entire city—which had 3,500 inhabitants—was wiped out. I lifted boards and planks and found corpses of children underneath. It was horrible."

MANY WOMEN DIED
"Most of the victims were women and children since the men were stronger and fought the waves more successfully," he said.

Asked if the city would be rebuilt, he said: "I wouldn't recommend it." The Secretary explained the geographical position of Santa Cruz, on a cape jutting out into the sea, was always precarious in times of storms.

He left by plane for Havana to organize relief work.

CAR INSURANCE BONUS REMOTE

Little Chance of New Ontario System Being Introduced, Agents State

Vancouver Island car owners have little prospect of reduced rates for automobile insurance, such as will become effective in Ontario on December 1, according to local insurance agencies. The rates in effect on Vancouver Island are declared to be already far below those effective in Ontario, and are believed to be the lowest in Canada.

The new bonus system to be brought into effect in Ontario next month will give insured persons a 10 per cent rebate on renewals if they can show a record free from accidents.

Local agents assert that the new Ontario system will not be effective with all companies, and regard the scheme as no more than an important experiment. Only in the event of complete success do they anticipate introduction of the bonus system on the Pacific Coast.

Changes in rates recently announced in Toronto mean an increase on public liability insurance, and a decrease on property damage—in most cases the changes cancelling each other. The saving will come to drivers who have a clear record and qualify for the bonus of 10 per cent.

This policy is in line with a recommendation made by the late Justice F. E. Rodgins in connection with the auto insurance rates probe. Some U.S. companies have been doing quite a large business on the merit plan in Toronto and other centres. The plan goes into effect throughout Ontario on December 1.

VICTORIA MAY GET BIG SHOWS

Fanchon and Marco Representative Here to Negotiate For "Whoopee" Production

E. H. Keate of Hollywood Intimates Victoria May Be Included in Chain

Fanchon and Marco productions may in future be enjoyed by Victorians if negotiations are concluded as planned by E. H. Keate of Hollywood, field representative of the famous show producers, who is at the Empress Hotel to-day. He is accompanied by Alfred G. Keighley, Seattle representative.

Mr. Keate, in an interview to-day, said he came to Victoria at this time to interview Cliff Denham, manager of the Royal Victoria Theatre, with a view to putting on in Victoria the famous Fanchon and Marco production of "Whoopee," which is now showing in Portland and will shortly be staged at Seattle and Vancouver.

GOOD STAGE TOWN
"We know that Victoria is a good stage town," said Mr. Keate, "and if our present plans go through it may mean that Victoria will be in a position in the future to witness high class Fanchon and Marco productions."

"Whoopee," was the outstanding production of the late Florenz Ziegfeld, and as a musical show proved to be one of the best box office successes, not only in New York, but in all the theatrical centres of the United States.

"This city, we realize, is appreciative of the finer arts, and if Fanchon and Marco are given any encouragement they would not hesitate to route their big musical attractions here," said Mr. Keate.

The plan in the mind of Mr. Keate is in the nature of an experiment, but he is here to-day, he stated, to size up the theatrical situation and important developments in this direction may ensue.

Defeat of House Reduction Measure By Non-party Vote Is Foreshadowed

Ministers Say Twigg Spoke Without Mandate in Revelstoke

Defeat of the Redistribution Bill, aimed to reduce the number of seats in the B.C. Legislature, is looked for when it comes before the House in January. It is considered likely that any redistribution measure introduced will be shelved until the latter part of the session, and then defeated by a non-party vote.

This view is shared by many political observers who point out that the government could not be held responsible for the defeat of a bill calling for reduced House membership which did not meet with the approval of members of both parties.

Victoria Among Cities Which Have Added to and Improved Fire Equipment

A decrease in loss by fire of approximately $1,600,000, compared with the same period in 1930, is shown in the tenth annual report submitted to the Attorney-General by Fire Marshal J. Alfred Thomas, covering the year ending December 31, 1931. During the year there were 2,680 fires in the province, the amount of the loss being placed at $3,162,394. Six adults and two children lost their lives through fires.

In spite of the prevailing conditions a number of the cities have improved their fire-protection by purchase of new equipment and improving existing equipment for the fighting of fire, the report of the marshal states. These include Victoria, Nanaimo, Roseland and West Vancouver.

New Westminster has completed negotiations whereby the water system of the city will be connected with that of the Vancouver and District Water Board, which will ensure an adequate water supply for fire protection.

RUM CONVICTS TO BE FREED

Governor-elect of Michigan Says 297 in State Ought to Be Released

Associated Press
Detroit, Nov. 11.—William A. Comstock, Michigan's Democratic Governor-elect, to-day declared that "if it is legally possible," he would release all offenders against the state prohibition law serving sentences in Michigan prisons.

Of 297 persons now serving terms in four Michigan prisons for prohibition violations, twenty-three are women.

Mr. Comstock's statement, the first since his election Tuesday over Governor Wilbur M. Brucker, Republican, fell in the midst of heated debate over the status of prohibition in Michigan following the overwhelming repeal of the bone dry clause of the state constitution.

"The people have discarded the state's prohibition amendment by a vote of three to one," Mr. Comstock said. "It seems to me the only fair thing to do is to release those convicted under the laws that the people demand be repealed."

Premier Bennett Is Expected To Represent Canada at Forthcoming World Economic Conference

Commons Debates Routing of Wheat

Maritimers Call For Shipments Through Their Ports; Prairie Men Point to Cost Problem

Canadian Press
Ottawa, Nov. 11.—Premier Bennett has given notice Parliament will reassemble January 30, after the adjournment to be made in a week or ten days.

The January date is considered more or less tentative, depending on the World Economic Conference to be held in London. The Prime Minister expects to represent Canada and Parliament may not reassemble until it is well under way.

The fall session, opened October 6, was called to consider the trade treaties negotiated at the Ottawa Imperial Conference. When they are ratified an extended adjournment will be made.

"Whatever the Prime Minister decides, we will abide by it," said Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Liberal leader, at the close of an exchange of courtesies in the Commons with Premier Bennett yesterday over the date for the reconvening Parliament in the new year.

SCORES BENNETT
During the debate yesterday evening, when the Commons was in committee on the Canada-United Kingdom trade treaty, strong exception to Premier Bennett's statement that $15,000 a day was being wasted through repetition in discussion of the Ottawa Conference treaty was expressed by Hon. Ian Mackenzie, Liberal, Vancouver Centre. "I would like to remind the Prime Minister we were called especially to deal with these agreements," he declared warmly.

INTERESTED IN MARITIMES
The member for York-Sunbury, R. B. Hanson, Conservative, had said inferentially that members of the Liberal party were opposed to development of the ports of the Maritime Provinces of Canada.

That statement he denied, declared Mr. Mackenzie. Members of the Liberal party were quite as much interested in developing Canada's Maritime ports as were supporters of the administration.

Mr. Mackenzie raised the question of the guarantee of continuance of the duties to be imposed by the United Kingdom. He said he could find no assurance in article two of the treaty that the duties would be maintained for the five-year duration of the treaty, or for any length of time.

VIEW'S DEFER
In the debate yesterday afternoon and evening differing eastern and western views on the routing of prairie grain were voiced.

"We have the facilities. Use our ports," said Maritime members. "What reaches world market through the cheapest channels," retorted the western members, and its routing is a business proposal.

For three and a half hours the House discussed the 6-cent wheat preference embodied in the Canada-Great Britain trade treaty and its effect on the routing of prairie grain. Tempers became frayed in the evening, and when Premier Bennett protested against "constant ratiocination" and "useless arguments" the Parliament of the taxpayers $15,000 a day. Hon. Ian Mackenzie pointed out more than had been consumed during the day by government supporters than opposition members. The Prime Minister himself did not understand details of the wheat preference, having found it necessary to cable the British government that very day for further information, said the Vancouver member.

Winnipeg, Nov. 11.—Unable to penetrate a driving snowstorm, a plane of the Brooks Airways Limited, of Prince Albert, Sask., remained at Portage la Prairie yesterday evening and flew into Winnipeg this morning.

Throughout the whole city from the early hours of the morning special memorial services and decorating of war monuments and cemeteries added to the solemnity of the day.

Many Ontario ceremonies were marred by heavy rain or snow, and in some cases the outdoor ceremonies were transferred to armories and similar buildings.

WANT MORE BUSINESS

Earlier in the day, Maritime members on both sides joined in proposals for routing more grain through the ports of Halifax and St. John. Canadian railways recently had imposed the same grain rate from Midland, Ont., to the Maritimes as from Buffalo to New York, they said, and the Maritime ports had all necessary facilities.

"It cannot be done," interjected prairie members. Liberals as well as Conservatives from the prairies said they did not oppose developing Canadian ports, but it was a simple business problem of the cheapest freight rates. A fraction of a cent meant thousands of dollars to the prairie.

There is an increasingly strong opinion," said Mr. Bennett, "that Canadian ports should be utilized by one of the greatest of Canadian industries (farming) if it in turn is to ask for and receive always every consideration from the government of the day."

ROUTE RESTRICTIONS

Three provisions must be fulfilled before Canadian wheat secured the 6 cent preference in Great Britain, said the Premier. It must be grown in Canada and consigned to Great Britain either on through-bills of lading or on documents authenticated by British consuls.

NOT REQUESTED BY PEOPLE

J. L. Brown, Liberal, Lisgar, Man., said it was apparent that Canadian wheat going through United States ports to the United Kingdom would not share in the preference of 6 cents a bushel. He wanted to know if this ruling was part of some definite plan, and if it represented a decision had been made to the British Government by the Canadian Government to bring this about.

"The honorable gentleman opposed to Canadian wheat going through Canadian ports," asked B. F. Smith, Conservative, Victoria-Carleton, N.B.

"At the moment there is no occasion to answer this question," replied Mr. Brown. He would ask the ministry to answer his question, he said. "You know the Parliament of the United Kingdom voted on it," interjected Premier Bennett.

"I know it was not done at the request of the people of Great Britain," said Mr. Brown. "And it was against the advice of the grain growers of western Canada."

This matter, said R. B. Hanson, Conservative, York-Sunbury, N.B., was one for the jurisdiction of the British Government alone, and any regulations it desired to make restricting or extending the conditions under which the preference might be exercised on goods entering the United Kingdom rested entirely with it.

The question had long exercised the mind of the people of eastern Canada. They had been appealing to the west to do something for the convenience of Canadian trade through eastern ports, he said. When the United Kingdom Government passed regulation No. 12 of the Import Duties Act, it settled this question for itself as far as Canada was concerned, and it would be the duty and privilege of Canadian shippers to conform to these regulations if they wanted the preference.

It had so happened, Mr. Hanson said, that this would help the Atlantic ports in a way for which the people of eastern Canada had been striving for years.

SALE OF WHEAT

Premier Bennett said he believed that, even though the present crop was large and the price small, approximately $75,000,000 had been released in western Canada. This was "a lot of money."

A great deal of discussion had revolved around the question of price, continued the Prime Minister. The world price was now fixed at Liverpool, and only two major factors operated in its fixation. The released supply and demand. There never had been an intention on the part of Canada to ask more than the world price in the grain market. In order, however, that there might be no suggestion the price would be increased to the United Kingdom, it had been set out clearly in the agreement. The British miller was quite at liberty to purchase foreign wheat if he saw fit to do so. If he did, however, he must pay two shillings a quarter (eight bushels) more than if he used Empire wheat.

VENIOT SPEAKS

An appeal for consideration of the ports of St. John and Halifax was made by Hon. Peter Veniot, Liberal, Gloucester, N.B.

Mr. Veniot directed his appeal particularly to members from western Canada. Had it not been for the Maritime Provinces there would have been no western Canada.

The Maritimes, Mr. Veniot said, wanted to share in the development of Canadian trade. They were prepared to make sacrifices as they had in the past, but hoped they would not be called on to make sacrifices which would be too great.

In his opinion it would be too much to ask the Maritimes to ally itself by while trade was diverted from Canadian ports to United States ports.

BRITISH DEBT NOTE SENT TO PRESIDENT

Publication of Message to U.S. Expected Shortly; France Hears Talk of Suspension in Interest Payment on Loan From U.S.

Associated Press

Washington, Nov. 11.—Secretary Stimson told newspapermen to-day the British debt note has been submitted to President Hoover, but that it would not be made public for two days at least. The Secretary of State said the British communication would be published in the United States and England at the same time.

London, Nov. 11.—The Foreign Office declined to-day to divulge the contents of the note on debts delivered yesterday to Secretary of State Stimson at Washington, and it appeared unlikely the document would be made public in the House of Commons or elsewhere or until the two governments agree on publication.

It was understood the note dealt only with the Anglo-American debt situation, but France, Italy and Belgium were informed of its general nature when it was sent to Washington.

FRANCE'S POSITION

Paris, Nov. 11.—In a semi-official quietude it was said to-day that "quite probably" France had sounded out the United States government regarding war debt negotiations, particularly with a view to suspension of a $20,000,000 interest payment due December 15.

This step, it was said, was justified by the fact that at the Lausanne Conference France had agreed to the United States proposal to suspend the interest on the Hoover Moratorium, accepted an appreciable reduction of her reparations claims against Germany.

France's position was said to be delicate. The French government was in a position to demand absolute reticence and discretion.

London, Nov. 11.—President-elect Roosevelt's denial of reports that he planned a pre-inauguration tour of Europe came as no surprise to those in authoritative positions in London, for nobody here expected him to make such a trip.

As for reports that Mr. Roosevelt does not favor more lenient terms to the British war debt, governmental quarters here said they were willing to let negotiations which were inaugurated in Washington take their course.

Douglas and another man were arrested.

MISSOURI BANK ROBBED BY THUG

Associated Press

Osceola, Mo., Nov. 11.—The Johnson-Lucas Banking Company was robbed of between $5,000 and $6,000 by a masked man who forced T. H. Whitaker, vice-president, to accompany him to the bank at 3 a.m. to-day and open the vault.

A contract for 1,000,000 and the losing of that contract.

D. M. Kennedy, U.F.A. Peace River, thought some means should be devised whereby the restrictive character of the responsibility would be overcome.

RESPONSIBILITY

Responsibility for the situation must be borne by the government, said Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Liberal, Melville, Sask. It was changing the route which was being used for the last fifty years for three-fifths of Canada's grain exports.

Agreement with the Prime Minister that the preference would not raise the price of grain to the growers was voiced by Dr. T. F. Donnelly, Liberal, Willow Bunch, Sask. Prairie farmers were alarmed over the operation of a trade agreement which might turn out to be a hindrance to trade. Sixty per cent of Canadian wheat went through United States ports. If it could not get markets within the empire then markets must be found elsewhere.

OCEAN RATES

When an agreement was entered into between Canada and the United Kingdom it should have been drafted in such a way as to preclude any possibility of misunderstanding, said E. J. Young, Liberal, Weyburn, Sask. Mr. Young expressed fear the effect of the agreement would be to raise ocean freight rates. If line operators out of New York found they had to pay six cents a bushel to get wheat into the United Kingdom the result might be higher ocean freight rates.

NEW EQUIPMENT

Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, said that as for shipping grain through Canadian ports, arrangements were being made to handle increased business expected as a result of the agreement.

The largest liners out of New York were making Halifax a port of call. "It is time we had a little pride in the extreme east and extreme west."

His beginning as a lacrosse star dates back to the time when he took a printing post at Mount Forest, Ontario, which was the home town of the famous lacrosse team known as the Lornes. With the Lornes he made his debut and made such a name for himself with his webbed stick that in 1894 Brockville persuaded him to go there to play on its star team. After that he played on the Ottawa Metropolitan, the Ottawa Capitals.

In 1899 the western urge affected him and like many of the ambitious young men of the day he fared forth to see what the world was like west of the Great Lakes. He came to Winnipeg, where he was employed by the Winnipeg Free Press. He played for the Winnipeggers who won the championship of Manitoba that summer. At the end of the season, he packed his valise and continued his trip west to the Coast.

On November 3, 1899, Mr. Ditchburn arrived in Victoria, which was then the chief centre of the North Pacific. He went to Tacoma for two years and then returned to this city.

He played lacrosse with the Lacrosse team in 1894 when it won the Coast championship. With Mr. Ditchburn one of the season's brilliant performers. He showed himself to be the fastest runner on the team, clever at getting ahead of his check and agile at jumping over the hands of his opponents. He was with his stick and at feeding them into the home players. He played centre or next to centre on the Victoria team until 1897, when he stepped out of the game to make Miss Lillian Blackett his wife.

ENTERS POLITICS

While he was building fame for himself on the lacrosse field, he was carrying on with his trade of printing. He was the printer of the Victoria Daily Times, The Vancouver Province and The Daily Colonist.

He became a leader in the Typographical Union and turned some of his spare hours to politics. He was one of the important members of the young Liberal group in Victoria. This led in 1908 to him being chosen as organizer of the Victoria Liberal Association. In the year following he was elected to the office of president of the association.

He continued with his craft, however, and with a membership record of twenty-four years already in the Typographical Union, he was chosen as the representative of the union on the board of the Victoria Liberal Association.

He was chosen as the representative of the union on the board of the Victoria Liberal Association. He was chosen as the representative of the union on the board of the Victoria Liberal Association.

TAKES OVER INDIAN OFFICE

Then in 1910 came the big change in his career. The office of Inspector of Indian Agencies for western British Columbia required filling and the Dominion Government was looking for a man who could adapt himself and who was competent in his contacts with the Indians.

His first important job in this office was to do with closing out the old Songhees Indian Reserve which had been holding up the development of Victoria across the harbor and the transfer of the Indians to their new lands purchased from the Hudson's Bay Company between the George and Esquimalt. In 1911 in the negotiations between Sir Richard McBride and the Premier of British Columbia and the Interior, he formerly took surrender of the Songhees Reserve lands from the Indians and passed these lands over to the province, in exchange for the 163 acres acquired for the new reservation from the Hudson's Bay Company.

He also handled the payment of $410,000 made to the Indians for land set aside for the Indians. This payment was at the rate of $10,000 for the head of each family in the tribe. In addition, he handled a payment of $37,000 representing the value of the improvements they were giving up on the old reserve.

After the financial part of the transaction was completed, he turned his attention to getting the tribe settled on its new lands. Modern houses were built for the Indians and by the use of the money they had been given, they established in their new surroundings and under better conditions of life.

Recognition of his success as a diplomatic administrator in the delicate work of handling the Indians of the Songhees, but the other Indian tribes in the western district, came in 1917 with his promotion to the office of Inspector for the value of the improvements they were giving up on the old reserve.

This was followed in 1923 by his promotion to the post of Indian Commissioner for British Columbia, with administrative powers equal to those of a superintendent. By this time there were brought under his charge all the 25,000 Indians within the province and seven Indian agencies.

His term of twenty-two years in office here was marked by an enlightened policy in the handling of the descend-

Reduction in the House is not thought to be favored generally by the existing membership, and the vastness of territory in the northern section of the province is pointed out as calling for continuance of the present representation, regardless of population.

LARGE CENTRIES HIT While Premier Tolmie has pledged himself to the principle of a reduced membership, it is not believed this number will be fewer than forty-two. Reduction it is claimed will be made in large centres such as Victoria and Vancouver. With both these centres cut in two there would be five seats accounted for, and as Oak Bay is said to be slated for merging with Saanichton and the Island, the sixth seat is eliminated from the present House membership.

ONE OUT OF FIVE SUFFERS FROM 'FLU'

Other schools are reported similarly affected. At Oaklands School yesterday morning every pupil of one class of thirty attended with a cold or a "sniffing" of some sort. Several schools have suffered an even greater percentage of absentees, it is stated.

Nearly every office in the city has suffered at some time or other during the last few weeks. One case in point was the treasury department at the City Hall which has seven out of fourteen away.

NOT SERIOUS

The city medical health officer, Dr. Richard Epton, has an assuring message for the "flu" sufferers. The type now prevalent is not of long duration, he explained, and apparently has no serious complications, although it may develop into pneumonia, or other ailment if not properly handled.

"The causes are not reportable to the health officer," he explained, "and have no way of knowing how widespread the epidemic has been except by casual conversations such as every one hears."

It is not grave enough for people to call in the doctor, but it is reported that nursing services have been usually busy attending cases in private homes.

The medical health officer suggests that the ordinary precautions against colds be taken. A day or two in bed is sufficient for recovery.

The mild "flu" usually starts with a cold in the head, sometimes affects the stomach, or causes a disfigurement in the head. It may reach a fever stage and generally leaves the patient weak and with a run-down feeling, often resulting in loss of weight.

WEATHER BLAMED

Extraordinary weather conditions to which Victorians have been subjected are held responsible for the widespread nature of the cold epidemic. Summer heat lasted nearly a month longer than usual, with a record for warmth in October. Fall rains were delayed and when they did arrive the aftermath was the spread of "flu."

Victoria is ordinarily a healthy place when it rains, but the "jumble" of weather conditions with heat, rain, cold, and sunshine mixed in confusion appears to have caught people napping in their annual precautions against cold.

GRIPPING MOMENT

As always, the most dramatic moment of the ceremonies came at 11 o'clock. For two long, hushed minutes the packed thousands stood still and silent that the cries of birds and the muffled rumblings of trains in the subway could be heard.

"Big Ben," the clock in the Commons tower, which somehow carries more of England to exiled Englishmen than anything else, called out the hour in the deep voice that has called it for many a year.

The echoes died away, the buglers sounded the "Last Post" and the crowd sang God Save The King and began to move away.

Many lingered to walk past the poppy-sprinkled field of remembrance, near Westminster Abbey, where thousands of white crosses and bright paper poppies have been planted.

In the Abbey there was a special religious service, attended by representatives of the army and navy and the veterans' organizations.

Strong Democratic Grip On U.S. Senate

Associated Press

Washington, Nov. 11.—The Democratic triumph in Tuesday's senatorial election was so complete that it not only gives the Democrats control for the next Congress, but assures them a majority until 1937 and probably until 1939.

By winning twenty-eight out of thirty-four senatorial contests, the Democrats will have fifty-nine seats in the new Congress, beginning in March, a strength which has been exceeded only twice in its history.

All the twenty-eight newly-elected senators will hold office until 1937 at least, provided they do not interrupt their service. In addition, the Democrats have eighteen holdovers whose terms will not expire until the time, making forty-six of the forty-nine necessary for a majority.

Also, of the thirteen Democratic senators who face the polls in 1935, five are from the solid south, which gives the Democrats an almost certain strength of fifty-one until 1937.

Tuesday's one-sided results also give the Democrats a good chance of controlling the Senate's "roster" of 1939, with twenty-seven of their candidates just elected serving until the next election. They continue to hold the sixteen southern seats that are contested in 1935 and 1937, they will have forty-three votes and will only need to control five of the other sixteen seats they now hold.

organizations, a military band and a band of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. The prayers and the religious service were conducted by the Bishop of London.

Back of the Guards, citizens packed Whitehall in a solid mass, on buildings facing the building face, back to Trafalgar Square and its memories of another military age, and on the other side of Westminster Abbey.

The people began arriving early this morning and long before the service started at 10:30 had filled the street.

WILL VOTE ON BUS SERVICE

People of Vancouver Dec. 14 Will State Views on Proposed System

Money Bylaws to Be Decided Total $300,000

Canadian Press
Vancouver, Nov. 11.—Two plebiscites and three small money by-laws will be submitted to the Vancouver voters at the civic election December 14. One of the plebiscites will ask the voters whether they favor allowing the city to own and operate a bus service. The other will ascertain if citizens are in favor of government-controlled sweepstakes for hospital purposes.

The by-laws, which aggregate $300,000, are as follows:
Sewers, $125,000, waterworks $80,000, city's share of local improvements $75,000.

The aldermen, at a special meeting yesterday rejected a proposal, sponsored by Ald. J. R. McKee, that the plebiscite be submitted to learn if the public favors reduction of the council from twelve to eight aldermen. Another rejected plebiscite advanced by the Federated Ratepayers' Association would have ascertained if the public favored election of the council at large, instead of by wards.

NO BRIDGE VOTE
Aldermen also voted against a motion to submit a $140,000 by-law to the ratepayers to pay the city's share of erecting a bridge at the east end of the C.N.R. fill, connecting Terminal Avenue with First Avenue in Grandview. This was rejected by ratepayers at previous elections. The C.N.R. and Great Northern Railway would be bound to contribute to such a structure.

Another proposal which was shelved by the council was the suggestion of Mayor Ibbot D. Taylor and Alderman Walter Espford that a large money by-law—$1,500,000 had been mentioned—for public works be submitted.

Decision of the federal Department of Indian Affairs to appeal the recent arbitrator's award in the price the city is to pay for the Burrard Bridge right-of-way through the Indian Reserve halted the plan of civic authorities to utilize $200,000 balance from the bridge by-law for general purposes. It had been proposed to submit a by-law authorizing transfer of these funds; but, with the award under appeal, aldermen decided it was unwise to set aside any bridge funds. Mayor Taylor, however, said he had written Premier Bennett, asking withdrawal of the appeal, and, if it succeeds, the by-law funds can be transferred. The city must know by November 23 if the appeal is to continue, as money by-laws must be advertised by then at the latest.

NO LIBRARY VOTE
The council also refused to accede to the library board's request that a portion of by-law balances, if transferred, be used for branch library purposes. The board also decided not to submit a transfer by-law for $42,119 remaining in the Detention Home by-law.

The decision to submit a plebiscite on city-owned bus services was made at the suggestion of the Federated Ratepayers' Association. The city has already decided to repeat its application to the Legislature for a charter amendment empowering the city to operate a bus service or, alternatively, to grant a franchise for its operation. The proposed amendment would provide that a service would not be operated unless approved by ratepayers at a plebiscite. The ratepayers' group, in urging a plebiscite in December, argued approval of the scheme by the voters would strengthen the city's appeal to the Legislature.

Alderman John Bennett remarked disapproval by ratepayers would injure the city's case at Victoria.

In discussing proposals for large money by-laws, aldermen were reminded the city still held about $4,000,000 worth of unsold debentures, issued under authority of former money by-laws.

NEW PLANS FOR HOUSE OF LORDS

Canadian Press
London, Nov. 11.—An unofficial joint committee of Conservative Peers and members of the House of Commons yesterday evening drafted proposals for reform of the House of Lords, which included reduction of the membership from 750 to 320.

The proposals include a scheme for election of members to the Upper House partly by peers and partly by members of county and borough councils, provision of seats for women, and allotment of incomes amounting to $500 a year for Labor members.

Under the scheme any bill other than a money bill vetoed by an absolute majority in the House of Lords would not be resubmitted by the Commons until after a general election.

Peers not elected to the House of Lords would be eligible as candidates for the Commons.

COURT TO RULE ON BUILDING

Canadian Press
Vancouver, Nov. 11.—By order of Mr. Justice Murphy, on the application of Hon. R. L. Maitland, K.C., the building dispute of Kamloops must show cause in the B.C. Supreme Court here on November 21 why a writ of mandamus should not issue against him to compel him to grant a permit to repair the Central Hotel in Kamloops.

The property is owned by the G. W. Jones estate, and the application was made by an executor, Alice Kathleen Homfray, for whom Mr. Maitland appeared.

The building inspector has refused a permit on the ground that the repairs, occasioned by a fire, would mean more than 40 per cent of the building was being replaced. He has ordered the structure torn down.

The repairs are estimated to cost $4,800.

NOMINATION IS PROBLEM

Canadian Press
Calgary, Nov. 11.—City officials are pondering over the nomination of John O'Sullivan as candidate for the public school board in the civic election November 14.

The city charter declares "any person convicted of treason or felony" is not eligible to contest a seat on the board. O'Sullivan is at present serving a term in the Lethbridge jail for being a member of an unlawful assembly, but will be released before the election.

The city fathers are attempting to decide if O'Sullivan's conviction constitutes a felony and if he is eligible as a school board candidate.

EDUCATION CHIEF HOPE

Only Way Happiness of State Will Come, Prof. Sedgewick of U.B.C. Tells Society

Keen Analysis of Present Situation Given in Address on "Who Shall Be Educated?"

"Only through long continued education will the happiness of this state come if it comes at all," said Professor G. C. Sedgewick of the University of British Columbia in a determined affirmation of the need for education contained in an address delivered before the University Extension Society in Victoria College yesterday evening.

Professor Sedgewick posed the question, "Who Shall Be Educated?" in answer to the Kidd Committee statement about the abandonment of free state education after the age of fourteen, and his reply outlined at the end of the lecture was to the effect that these masses must be educated and that the schools were the only places in which this could be accomplished. The speaker, following Plato's division of society in three classes—the guardians or governors or leaders, the auxiliaries, including civil servants and all specialized professions, and the masses of men—pointed out finally that these masses must be educated in sufficient quantities but to grasp various economic and social realities of the modern world so that they could the better follow and sympathize with the aims and the paths of the enlightened leaders.

To accomplish this, he said, required an education that went beyond the three R's. The wastage of undeveloped capacity for leadership was perhaps the greatest wastage of the capitalist system and it was documents like the Kidd Report that would keep this wastage going, stated Professor Sedgewick.

KIDD REPORT AND 1720

Professor Sedgewick was subtly ironic when he compared a passage from Bernard de Mandeville's "Fable of the Bees," written in 1720, with a passage from the Kidd Report. In the fable appeared a warning against the inactivity and the danger of educating workers above the immediate requirements of their labor—the worker should keep to his job and not learn anything else, Mandeville wrote.

The passage from the Kidd Report, after advising the majority against "the advanced branches of learning," went on to point out that the sooner youth began to produce the wealth now lying dormant in the natural resources of the province, the better it would be for society.

The question, Professor Sedgewick emphasized, resolved itself into this: How much sacrifice were the people of British Columbia willing to make to keep education within the reaches of the masses?

MORE INCOME TAX
British Columbians must be ready and willing to endure further income tax, he affirmed. Speaking for himself, he could quite readily state he was able to have his income tax doubled without his being deprived of any of the necessities of life, and he felt this was so with many others with incomes.

Professor Sedgewick compared provincial conditions with Great Britain to show how much more stringent income taxes were in the Old Country and how little the people complained. "Have we the stamina to endure further such taxes?" the speaker asked. He felt that only in this willingness to endure lay the hope for future betterment of society through education.

ECONOMIC UNIT
Professor Sedgewick commenced his address with some "assumptions" and then some analyses of various systems of government. The assumptions were that the world of science and research into nature's processes would go on, that the world would continue to live in what was known as the machine age, that the process of world trade would go on, that the world was an economic unit, that it was foolish for people to live unto themselves, that every intelligent man believed it to be foolish.

The present question, and one which the president of the Bank of England had mooted his inability to answer, was how to keep separate and warring nationalities going in a world which was an economic unit.

Professor Sedgewick dealt briefly with caste, heredity, and unrestrained democratic, dictatorial, communist and "conditioned" societies, and concluded by stating that he was still a convinced believer in democracy.

AGAINST DICTATORSHIP
The weaknesses in a Mussolini form of government outweighed, in the speaker's estimation, its definite virtues, and since he was dealing with a more satisfactory system "within reach of the present generation" he considered a dictatorship impractical for British Columbia because he could not for the moment recollect any British Columbia man who would be suitable as a dictator.

Of Communism, Professor Sedgewick observed that western people were regarding Russia and her system a good deal more thoughtfully than they did five or ten years ago and that they had ceased to curse the Soviets partially because they were afraid.

"It is unkind to think the Russians are in the wrong vehicle on the right road and that the road is one which we will sometime be traveling," said the speaker.

But here again Professor Sedgewick saw the deadening influence of bureaucracy and of the standardization of

MAN KILLS TWO AND HIMSELF

Associated Press

San Francisco, Nov. 11.—Victims of a tragic romance which ran into the barrier of blood relationship, a mother, daughter and a rejected suitor lay dead here to-day as police pressed investigation of what they said was a double murder and suicide yesterday evening.

Nathaniel Malouf, traveling salesman, died at an emergency hospital from a gun wound police said was self-inflicted, after allegedly shooting to death Mrs. Waffa Malouf, forty, and her daughter, Miss Anessa Malouf, twenty-four. Another daughter, Miss Lucy Malouf, seventeen, escaped death, police said, by fleeing from her home where the shooting was done.

Malouf, authorities said, became enraged because the mother objected to his proposed marriage to one of her daughters on the ground they were cousins, whipped out a gun and shot the two women and then sent a bullet through his own head.

ARMISTICE DAY REACTIONS

By G. A. LUNDIE, M.A.

Before the war there was hardly anything which many of us seemed to think about less than the price at which the material and moral gains were won which have come to us without any effort or personal sacrifice of our own. Not many had, the insight which enables one to realize the almost immeasurable hardship and suffering through which nearly all these material and moral gains have come. The result was a prevalent temper to accept as its legitimate due the result of ages of toil and sacrifice, or to take it as a matter of course as we take the light of the sun or the air we breathe. Men did not deny the mysterious background—dark, sinister, unexplored, against which the path by which the human race has slowly moved upwards stands out in the twilight. But it passed out of notice. It was best forgotten. So most men seemed to think until some quite concrete event or personal experience awakened imagination to it.

What this experience or event would be seemed very often a matter of personal temperament, or even of accident. In one case it might be the sufferings of a little child, awakening as it were suddenly a consciousness of the age-long burden that bears hardest on the innocent and threatening with shipwreck a man's faith. In other cases it might be such a calamity as the wreck of the Titanic, or it might be something of a totally different kind as in the case of the man who brooded over the sufferings of rabbits which he had observed caught alive in wire snares until he was moved to go and break the windows of some government office in Downing Street, London, as a protest against the civilization which sanctioned such cruelties.

The war appealed to the imagination of all. This is no matter of temperament, mood or accident. The dark background came out of notice no more. We see all the epochs of human development full of gloomy and horrible passages of suffering and strife. What is to be the reaction of the modern spirit to the vision of this background? That is the question of questions for us all on this Armistice Day.

Of first reaction is inevitably to ask: once more the ancient question which the child asks at his mother's knee: "Why did God let it happen?"

Why this fearful price to be paid, not only for the great victories of the spirit—their very greatness knows a sombre glory on the agonies through which they were achieved—but even for the smallest gains? To what purpose is this waste?

"We know," says Professor Mellone, "that such questions can and have been answered, but the force of the child's question 'Why?' is unexhausted, for the answers are only in part."

Let us be willing to learn something more from the same child. When he is really suffering or in trouble, all such questions vanish. There is no longer any thought of why anyone let it happen. All the longing of his little soul is concentrated in the one cry, "mother!" It is the cry for someone who cares. This is the elemental hunger of the human soul. This created all the religions throughout all the ages, and when all the historian grave where his head was buried is also open. The catacombs where the early Christians were buried, is a sight to behold. The world is in a frenzy because of these things. Is it possible that the resurrection of the dead, which Christians believed was not a myth, but a fact?

"Surely the world is filled with fear and mystery. (A pre-Intimation and a prediction of about what may appear as a headline on the front page of some future edition of The Victoria Daily Times.)

A POSSIBLE JOSHUA OR MOSES
To the Editor:—Mayhap it is ordained at our various Mosesses may not enter promised lands, that man's pioneer leaders must die in mental wilderness, outside the gates of such lands that all lands flowing with milk and honey are mental pigmies—promised lands of pioneers for their children—never to be realized by those children for the reason that what is milk and honey for one generation, may be merely water and sour bread for their progeny.

What has our generation wanted and worked for? Political freedom? Liberty of thought? Co-operative effort? Applied science? A more suitable interpretation of ethics, morals and the idea of God?

Bravely has it marched through the wilderness to arrive at the gates of the promised land of its Mosess. Has our Mosess gone up into the mountain to obtain the necessary keys to open the gates? Must these Mosesses leave us at the gate? Must a Joshua march us about outside the walls in a reconnaissance tour?

Where is our Joshua? Where the trumpets to vibrate us out of despair, and lethargy into joy and action? How many times must we march round outside the walls of the promised land and our Mosess has shown us: "How long, oh Lord, how long!"

May the writer suggest as Mosess or a Joshua, a great engineer, a great doctor of philosophy, a great sponsor of what our generation holds dear of the tools we pass on to our children, democracy, culture, ethics, morality, religion, education, art, and a new capitalism, child of the old one, that has done marvels of development, despite present appearances.

This Joshua has developed a wonderful trumpet, in the form of a book, which is available at our excellent local, public library. The title of the book is, "Jobs, Machines, Capitalism." The author—our possible Joshua—Arthur Galberg.

Every clergyman, every applied scientist, every teacher of men, every business executive, every laborer, should read through this excellently created, intelligent, well-mannered and highly moral, solution of our economic difficulty. Dalberg's solution of this nightmare, is simple, direct and complete. This scribe prophesies it will become a key text-book of reference for those of us who desire to save our valuable democratic foundations from those who would pour contempt upon them and from those who would wreck them. TRIAL ORDERED IN SAANICH CASE

After a preliminary hearing in the

Saanich Police Court yesterday afternoon, Caval Hamilton of Keating was committed by Magistrate George Jay to stand trial on a charge of being in possession of stolen goods.

The article in question was an electric drill, valued when new at $78, which disappeared from the premises of Norman Stimster, an art metal worker, on October 13. The accused sold this drill to Julius Pallantier, a junk dealer, on October 22, according to the evidence. Saanich Chief of Police Allan Rankin, Constable P. K. Cummings and Detective Henry Jarvis arrested the defendant.

Several coal mines in England are being reopened.

ACCOUNT FOR JUNE COVERED

Finance Minister Says Cheque
Sent City For June Relief
Contribution

Following a protest registered by the City Council Monday night over the large relief account owing by the provincial government, Hon. J. W. Jones, Minister of Finance, yesterday notified the city that a cheque for June accounts would be placed immediately.

Payment of the contributions for the months after June awaits the settlement of a question over the allowances for taxes and water rates. Claiming these items come within the provinces for shelter, the city has allowed so much each month to the applicants but the government does not agree with this policy.

The city, in its protest, asked for an early settlement of the accounts, totaling in all $12,000, owing to the heavy carrying charges which fall on the city.

CONCERT FOR REMEMBRANCE

Premier Attends Britannia
Branch Function at Shrine Hall

Under the auspices of the Britannia Branch No. 7, Canadian Legion, an "In Remembrance" concert given at the Shrine Auditorium yesterday evening met with an appreciative audience.

Premier Tomin opened the affair with a short address in which he commended the returned men on the spirit they showed during the present times of stress. He expressed the view that things were already on the upward grade in British Columbia which was more fortunately situated than many other parts of the empire.

A programme of unusual length and variety made the concert a great success, amateur talent being used and showing to advantage. Exhibitions of jiu-jitsu by a team from the Japanese school and of tumbling by Y.M.C.A.'s "International Five" drew loud applause, displaying a finished technique and ability in physical dexterity. The "Y" team included two girls, Leona Francis and Irene Holmes, and three men, Archie McKinnon, Robert Gordon and Leonard Oliver.

"Burlington Bertie," as presented by Miss Barbara Groves, was a great favorite and she also gave a clever impersonation of Tom English, singing "Jolly Good Luck to the Girl Who Loves a Soldier."

The Warner Cliffe trio opened the programme with Brahms' "Hungarian Dance," Redman's "All Through the Night," Schubert's "Moments Musical" and "Shadows of Evening" (Zamenik). Mrs. C. C. Ward, the most arduous role of the evening, accompanying both singers and dancers throughout.

DANCING
The Norfolk School of Dancing furnished two of the turns, with Kellie Sims' "Russian Dance," Eva Milen's toe dance, Eileen Chislett's slave dance and "Dying Swan," little Margaret Welsh's Irish dance and Dorothy Appleby's tumbler dance showing talent. The Florence Clough Dancing School also provided some colorful numbers through three performers, Agnes Finn and Eileen Jacques giving a gypsy dance and tap dances, and Evelyn Finn an original dance.

Miss Nora Jones, who sang "The Carpet" and "The Sleigh" and Frank Partridge, another popular singer, gave much pleasure in the first half of the programme. The entertainment closed with a little sketch, "Dames Claimed," by Rosa Semple, and the cast including Maud Hammond, Reuben Hardy, Kathleen Langley, Chris Haller, Alex Semple and A. Colby.

Trustee Partridge Resigns Her Post

Special to The Times

Cumberland, Nov. 11.—Trustee Mrs. M. B. Partridge has resigned her seat on the Cumberland School Board. Mrs. Partridge wrote the board that she took this step owing to her continued absence from the city. "This will make it necessary to elect four candidates for the school board at the next municipal election. Mrs. Partridge's term of office having still one year to run when she resigned."

Malcolm McKinnon, of Merville, has been given permission to use the school for night classes in art. John Kyle, director of technical education, wrote that the Department of Education would make the usual grant for music and art classes, if organized.

School attendance showed a considerable decrease during the last few days of October and the first week of November, owing to influenza and stormy weather. On October 31 those absent numbered ninety-four; on Tuesday, November 1, 140; Wednesday 137, and on Thursday 164, when the schools were closed for the week-end. Several teachers had also been away through illness.

Not Guilty By Reason of Insanity

Canadian Press

Vernon, Nov. 11.—David Murdoch, former chief of police at Kelowna, at the conclusion late yesterday evening of his third trial on a charge of murdering Jean Nolan, was found not guilty because of insanity by an insane court jury after five hours' deliberation. The members of two juries previously, one at the spring assizes and the other here this week, had failed to agree on a verdict.

Another charge, that of shooting to death Constable Archie McDonald of the Kelowna force, faced Murdoch, but whether this would be proceeded with in view of yesterday evening's verdict was not known.

Jean Nolan, police operative in Kelowna, was shot and killed late in the afternoon of January 19 last.

Notaries were urged to support the Seattle Symphony concert here next Wednesday, by Percy Watson, delegate from the Rotary Club working with the service club's council on the presentation to Victoria of the Sound City musicians.

Church Bans "O Promise Me"
From Wedding Ceremonies

Chicago, Nov. 11.—"O Promise Me," a song that has brought tears to the eyes of spectators at many a wedding, will not be permitted to be sung at any ceremony in St. Luke's Evangelical Lutheran Church, though not because of the tears.

Nor will the hitherto custom of throwing rice or confetti in the church building or in front of the church be allowed, the Rev. A. A. Kretzmann, the pastor, said.

Furthermore, "kissing in public is never in good taste and appears in a particularly objectionable form when it is done before the altar in sight of a congregation. May we request you to forego the pleasure of this enjoyment for a more appropriate place. The 'joining of hands' is a sufficient sign of your affections fully and freely bestowed."

And "everyone has the right to enter the church and be present throughout the wedding ceremony," it is specified. "The pastor and members of the church boards reserve the right to attend all rehearsals."

EUGENE YSAIE'S WIDOW
TO MAKE CONCERT DEBUT

New York, Nov. 11.—Can she hope for one-tenth of the acclaim which greeted her late husband, whom many considered the greatest violinist that ever lived?

Such are a few of the questions haunting Mme. Eugene Ysaie, widow of the celebrated genius of the strings, as she prepared for a New York debut in Town Hall, under the immediate patronage of Queen Elizabeth of Belgium.

LONG A VIOLINIST
Just a few years ago, Mme. Ysaie was Jeanette Dincin, daughter of Dr. Herman Dincin, Brooklyn physician. She began as a violin student at the age of five. At fourteen she left public school for the New York College of Music. Meanwhile she had been a private pupil of Leopold Auer, Hans Letz, Frank Kneisel and other famed ones.

But she was twelve when first she heard her tutor and husband, the great Ysaie, play in New York. It seemed to her, then, that she should live—yes, die if necessary—for this genius. Actually she asked her father to send her to Cincinnati where Ysaie was conducting the symphony orchestra at the time.

Timidly, the little girl asked the great artist if he would some day take a pupil. Yes—he would. She remained in Cincinnati for a year.

ROMANCE FLOWERS
That was the beginning of a romance destined to flower many years later. Ysaie, in 1922, determined to return to his native Belgium. There was a possibility, it seemed, that he might accept a few chosen pupils. Jeanette's father persuaded him to take her as one of them.

Four years passed, during which she studied, assisted Ysaie with his concerts and appeared before the Belgium royal family. She had grown to twenty-five and Ysaie was seventy. Naturally, the entire music world was amazed when they were married.

"It was mutual love of music," they were quoted as saying, at the time when the question of difference in ages was raised. But Mme. Ysaie proved that it was more than that. She had a tremendous devotion for the genius of her husband, as well as the man.

Within the year after their marriage, Ysaie grew so feeble he needed greater attention and Jeanette took over his teaching role in the Conservatoire Royale de Music in Brussels. Queen Elizabeth became one of her enthusiastic pupils.

AMBITION FULFILLED
Ysaie, at the time, was rushing an opera in hopes of completing it before death overtook him. Jeanette broke down in health herself spending her days and nights attending the stricken genius, looking after his affairs and giving her every moment to his care and comfort.

The opera was completed before his death and was presented at Liege. He was too ill to attend. When it opened in Brussels he was carried in an ambulance and carried into the theatre on a stretcher.

Now, recovered in health after a long rest, Jeanette returns to her own country. Her ambition is now fulfilled—she is to play on the same stages where her husband played.

Your Baby

HOW DO YOU FIGURE YOUR BABY'S FORMULA?

We endeavor to familiarize mothers with the minimum and maximum amounts of milk which a child must have in order to supply his protein needs. If a mother knows these, she has some check upon the formula and is able to decide whether it is too weak or too strong, even if baby's gain weren't telling her the same story.

A baby must have at least one and one-half ounces of milk for each pound of his weight every twenty-four hours. A healthy baby may easily take two ounces per pound and digest it successfully. He needs one and one-half ounces, he may take two ounces, but he does not need more. Babies who get more than two ounces per pound have histories of lost appetites, eczema, and other ailments indicative of their overloaded digestions.

In figuring the milk portion of the formula, one usually suggests the smaller amounts for the young baby, gradually increasing to the stronger formulas. Thus a ten-pound baby may have fifteen ounces of milk (one and one-half ounces per pound) while a fifteen-pound baby may have from twenty-two ounces to thirty ounces, according to his needs as indicated by his gains.

FIGURING EVAPORATED MILK

Evaporated milk is considered to be twice as strong as fresh milk, because its bulk is deprived of half its water content. So in figuring evaporated milk formulas, it is usual to give the baby one ounce for each pound of his weight, which is actually equivalent to two ounces of fresh milk. As evaporated milk is easy to digest, this amount is seldom burdensome even from the first.

Here is a baby who is getting too little food for her weight. Mrs. C. K. says that she is seven months old and weighs twenty pounds. She sits erect, pulls herself to her feet and has four teeth. Her feeding consist of twelve ounces of evaporated milk, which is equal to twenty-four ounces of fresh milk, sixteen ounces of water, and two ounces of sugar. She has two tablespoons of vegetables a day, the juice of one orange or one ripe tomato, and four tablespoons of cereal. She is very constipated. In addition to the above diet she drinks one quart of water a day.

INCREASE MILK

Everything is all right except the amount of milk. A twelve pound baby could take twelve ounces of evaporated milk, so you can see how deficient that amount is for a twenty pound child. But we mustn't forget to mention that after we reach thirty-two ounces of milk, or sixteen ounces of evaporated milk, those amounts do not increase, as no child needs any more than one quart of milk daily.

Increase the milk slowly, Mrs. C. K.—one ounce every second or third day—until sixteen ounces is being given with sixteen ounces of boiled water, and about two to three tablespoons of sugar. The above figures are the same as whole milk and with whole milk even the seven months old child needs very little sugar. Keep the amount small, unless constipation develops, until baby is ten months old. Increase amounts of cereal and vegetables when baby seems anxious to have more. How about cod liver oil? You omitted to mention that.

called the "perfect match" six years ago, was asked yesterday by Eleanor Boardman, screen actress, who filed suit for divorce from King Vidor, one of the best known and highest paid motion picture directors.

The beautiful actress, who starred in "Tell It to the Marines," "The Crowd," and several other films, charged Vidor with cruelty and named as co-respondent Miss Betty Hill, a script girl for Vidor Pictures, with whom she claimed Vidor spent most of his time during July, August and September.

A restraining order was asked in the divorce complaint preventing Vidor, who directed "The Big Parade," "The Champ," and "Peg o' My Heart," from disposing of $1,000,000 worth of what she claimed was community property. The actress asked a "reasonable sum" for the support of herself and their two daughters, Antonia, five, and Belinda, two.

The Vidors were married September 8, 1926, at a fashionable Hollywood wedding which attracted a host of prominent screen and stage players. The marriage was called the "perfect match," and Miss Boardman was considered one of the screen's beautiful women. She said they separated last June 20.

Provincial examinations for assayers under the Bureau of Mines Act will be held at Victoria on December 5, it was announced at the Legislative Buildings yesterday.

Big Haul in Carpathian
Mountains

London, Nov. 11.—Two women, Miss D. Aubertin and Miss E. Trevaux, are busy in the Natural History Museum, South Kensington, S.W., sorting out the results of their expedition to the Carpathian Mountains in Poland and Czechoslovakia last summer.

"As a result of their six weeks' work there the museum is now richer by 8,000 flies—and thousands of these represent different sorts of flies peculiar to Central Europe."

"We used to go out every morning," said Miss Aubertin to a reporter, "but believe me, you feel you have had enough flycatching after two hours. You sweep the ground with your net, and then you have to hold it up and flies crawling all round you, to see what you have got."

She opened one of the neat wooden boxes in which the specimens are carried. On pieces of cork not more than an inch square there were hundreds of minute insects.

Love Unlocks The Door

By ANNIE S. SWAN

"You know precisely where to find everything, I suppose you have made yourself master of their contents?"

Gerard hit his lip, and his color rose. His temper, though not passionate, was quick enough, and the suggestion made was a studied insult.

"My father has made a mistake, I think, giving everything into your hands as he has done. It is unprecedented with a new servant. He has to be tested first."

"Your father presumably knows his own business best," replied Gerard curtly. He had never seen Gilbert in such a moody mood, but, though nettled, he was determined not to lose his temper.

"Be good enough to leave the keys with the caretaker or on the counting-house desk after this."

"I have Mr. Horne's permission to work late," replied Gerard civilly but firmly. "And he is perfectly well aware that I take the keys home."

"It's against the rule. When I was here my father was keen enough about every little punctilio being observed. It is better that a new servant should conform the rules."

Gerard suddenly smiled. He could not help it, though why he did so at the moment he could not say. Gilbert's iteration "servant," obviously meant to annoy him, fell short of its mark. The smile added the necessary spark to the flame of Gilbert's inward wrath, and it blazed forth.

"Don't grin so insultingly at me! Who do you think you are, anyhow? A confounded whippersnapper—or a law clerk my father picked out of a gutter and brought here as a spy. He'll get all his thanks in one day, and I've told him so."

Gerard turned his back on his assailant, entered the small dressing-room, which opened off the laboratory, and banged the door. He did not want to bandy words with Gilbert, and, above all, not to lose his temper. Retreat was the only alternative. He heard Gilbert muttering to himself for a second or so, then he went out, and also banged his door. This war was declared.

Bannerman came in by-and-bye ready to go home. When Gerard heard him he came out.

"Mr. Gilbert's on the warpath," he said lightly, though his color was still a little heightened and his eyes unusually bright. "He's had his fling at me."

"I believe you, I am sorry though, because it will make a difference to me. I do my best to conciliate him. Do you think I assume too much?"

"No; I think you're the right man in the right place at this time. I tell the master that this very day. He thinks that himself."

"Thank you, Bannerman. An' what's more, he has an easier mind than I've kept him. He's since his sons can't here. But if he gangs awa' to parliament things will be geyan queer here. I can tell ye. I think I'll be seekin' my pension soon."

"No, no, Charlie, you must stand by me."

"We'll see," Bannerman lowered his voice, and, glancing around cautiously to see whether anybody could possibly be in hearing, he approached Gerard with a mysterious look on his face.

"Maister Gerard, something that's gaun' to get him intil trouble. I mean tell ye. It's been on my mind for a hale week. I was very near tellin' the master himself this mornin', but he has had trouble enough. Maybe ye could advise what should be done."

"What is it, Charlie? But unless you think I could be of any use I should prefer not to hear anything of the kind. I need rather to have my good bolstered up where he is concerned."

"Oh, he canna hurt you, ye've abune him," observed Bannerman, as if by verdict settled the whole matter. "See, let me tell ye. I've two dochters."

"So ye told me."

"Ane o' them's in a shop in Princess Street, theither ane—Annie—is in service, she changed her place a fortnight ago, and has gone to Portobello, where she's housemaid at a manse."

"Yes," said Gerard, when Bannerman seemed to pause.

"Well, they're friends, then, father, for Maister Gilbert spends a lot o' his time there. He's bidin' wi' folk in a little cottage at Joppa. I can show ye the house, and if it's true he's gaun' to marry Mrs. Ingles, I wonder how she'd like to see him on the pier wi' another lassie, as I've seen him maik nor once. I thocht maybe it was his cousin."

Gerard was silent a moment.

"There's something the matter, Charlie, undoubtedly. I am not surprised at what you tell me at all. I've seen him myself more than once with this very girl. But it begins to look a little more serious. What I can't understand is his boldness about it. Portobello is so near, and he does not appear to take any precautions to hide what is going on."

"Maybe he thinks that's the best way to hide it. Well, do ye think I should mention it to the master?"

"I don't. Wait a little, Charlie. Things will develop without us. After all, it's none of our business, is it? I've seen him say the house was?"

"On the road to Joppa, it's by name Rosebush. It could be easily found. There could be nae harm in asking about the folk that bide there. I'd like to be at the bottom of it, for it's no a common love affair, as besides, there's Miss Ingles."

"Yes," said Gerard slowly. "There's Miss Ingles."

Bannerman, struck by the note in Gerard's voice, looked at him intently. But Gerard had discreetly turned his head away.

CHAPTER XXVIII

Gerard and Bannerman left the works together. The latter lived in Sinclair Street, Stockbridge, at the end of which Gerard parted with him. One of the secrets of Gerard's power over the men was that he was never too proud to acknowledge them in the daytime when they met in the streets. He would often walk with one of them part of the way home, asking a few friendly questions about his circumstances and family. This came naturally to him. He was immensely interested in all that concerned the workmen. One day, talking about it to Elsie, he said perhaps he had inherited some understanding of it from their mother, who had been the daughter of a laboring man.

It was an off night at the college, but he had promised Horne to attend in his place an evening meeting of a scientific association of which his employer was a member. Horne was prevented from attending himself because of a political dinner engagement at which he had to speak. But he was particularly anxious to obtain at first hand the report of a foreign delegate on some matter affecting the work of the laboratory.

Gerard had his employer's ticket of admission in his pocket. Before deciding whether to go home he looked at the hour of meeting, which was half-past seven. He had only time to step into a restaurant and get a cup of tea, then he walked rapidly to the place of meeting.

He was much interested in what he saw and heard there, and the animated discussion he was able to follow intelligently, though some of the technical terms used puzzled him. The delegate spoke in French, with which language Gerard was perfectly familiar. Seldom had he enjoyed a meeting more.

It was nine o'clock when he left it, and he had a long walk home. But it was a fine night, and in his pocket lay snugly a good cigar, which had been given to him by Horne after luncheon at the works. It had been arranged that Gerard was to take the mid-day meal with his employer and his son, an arrangement agreeable to Gerard when Horne himself was present. Once or twice, however, he and Gilbert had been compelled to dine alone, and the experience had not been particularly pleasant for Gerard. After their little encounter that evening he decided that it could not be repeated.

Gilbert Horne and his affairs occupied his whole thoughts during his steady, swinging walk to the Cleugh Cottage. What made them doubly interesting, nay, of the first importance to him, was his interest in the woman Gilbert Horne was going to marry.

He had met her a few times at Burton Lea, and once had called by invitation to the house of Mrs. Place. And they had become friends with one of those strange leaps across barriers of circumstance which happen only once or twice in a lifetime, and always mark one of its epochs.

Mary Ingles was the woman Gerard would have given ten years of his life to marry, and doubtless this deep-seated feeling was the root of much antagonism to Gilbert Horne. At the same time he realized that even had Horne not been in the way his chance of success in such a quarter would have been small indeed. He knew the family atmosphere; he had gauged it pretty well on the two occasions he had encountered it. But the mere thought that Horne should be deceiving her or not playing the game straight filled him with fury all the more powerful that it was kept under, and he told himself that he would leave no stone unturned to discover the mystery which undoubtedly at the moment enveloped much of Horne's actions. He could not pry, because he was too honorable, but he could keep his eyes and ears wide open, and use his judgment and opportunity as they occurred. He was eager and ready to defend the woman he had learned to love, not in the ordinary way of slow growth and selection, but in one of those inspirations which come only to some men, and leave them in no doubt. The story told to him by Bannerman troubled him beyond his power to express; he was still thinking of it when he arrived at the gate of the Cleugh Cottage.

No member of the little family was more pleased than Gerard with the new home, and the miracle of grace and healing it had already worked in a short time on his mother was cause for hope for the deepest thankfulness.

Elsie heard the click of the gate, and drew the curtains to peep out. When she saw him coming down the path she ran out to meet him.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

PUFF SHELLS HAVE MANY USES

BY SISTER MARY

Cream puff shells are made of what is technically called "choux paste."

They really are a form of pastry, and are peculiar in that they are twice cooked.

Always popular for party refreshments, one of their chief merits lies in their excellent keeping qualities. They can be made several days before they are wanted and kept in perfect condition until required for filling.

They must not be filled until ready to serve because the filling tends to make the case soggy if allowed to stand in it any length of time. However, the filling process is very simple and takes only a few minutes.

Since the shell is not sweet, it need not be used exclusively for dessert, but can take the place of a paty shell for a creamed meat or fish. If grated cheese is added with the flour, the case is good for holding salads as well as hot creamed mixtures.

When it comes to using the puff shells for dessert, the wide variety of fillings available makes it possible to vary the dessert in many ways. Custard of various flavors, ice cream, fruit and canned fruit, all of which are all inviting when served in a crisp puff shell.

Choux paste is the foundation for both eclairs and cream puffs. The shape of the finished puff proclaims its name.

The following rule will make twelve medium-sized puffs. One puff is allowed for each person to be served.

PUFF SHELLS

One cup boiling water, 1½ cups butter, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 cup flour, 4 eggs.

Put butter and water into a smooth sauce pan and bring quickly to the boiling point. When bubbling, add flour all at once. To do this turn the flour into the butter and water in one motion—dump it, in other words. Then begin to stir vigorously until the mixture forms a ball and leaves the bottom and sides of the pan. Stop at once and remove from the heat. Let cool for two or three minutes and add one unbeaten egg. Beat until completely blended and beat in the second egg in the same way. Beat in each egg separately and then beat until the mixture will not cling to a clean knife when drawn through it.

Drop from tip of spoon, or shape with past bag and tube on to an oiled and floured baking sheet. Bake forty minutes in a moderate oven. A slow oven with a gradually rising temperature insures a well-baked inside. Be sure the shells are thoroughly baked and firm. Cool before storing or filling.

If you drop the dough from the tip of a teaspoon, a tiny shell is made that is appropriate to use for quite formal occasions. Filled with a cream filling, they take their place on a tray of assorted cakes to serve with tea.

Uncle Wiggly's Table Cloth

(By Howard R. Garis)

"Will you be home early this afternoon?" asked Mrs. Longears of her rabbit gentleman husband one morning as he was hopping away to look for adventure.

"Why do you want me to come home early?" he asked, giving his pink nose just a bit of a twinkle to make sure no part of his breakfast orange was sticking to it.

"Mr. and Mrs. Twistytail, the gentleman and lady pigs, are coming to supper," said Mrs. Longears. "Nurse Jane and I thought it would be nice if you could come home early and help look after the children while she and I got the table ready."

"I'll do that," Uncle Wiggly promised. "I'll go out and have an adventure and come home to the bungalow early. I'm glad you are going to have the pigs for supper."

"Yes, it will be nice," said Nurse Jane who was doing the dusting so the bungalow would be clean for company.

True to his promise Uncle Wiggly did come home early. One reason was he couldn't seem to find any adventure. Once he thought he had one when he heard a rustling in the dried leaves and he expected to see a Bad Chap pop out. But it was only Mr. Bushytail, the squirrel gentleman, looking for a nut to bring to his wife. The squirrel and rabbits had a good laugh over it and both went their ways.

So it happened Uncle Wiggly didn't find an adventure though he hopped over the fields and through the woods and when he got home he had so much to do, amusing the bunny boys and girls so they wouldn't get in the way of his wife and Nurse Jane, that he couldn't even think of an adventure.

After a while fat Mr. and Mrs. Twistytail, the pigs, came waddling over to supper.

"Did you bring Curly and Floppy?" asked Mrs. Twistytail.

"Oh, no, we left our little boys at home this time," grunted Mr. Twistytail. "Their grandmother will give them their supper."

"I wish you had brought them, and we could have had some fun," said Buster.

"It's all right—just as well they didn't," whispered Curly to Buster. "Those pig boys always eat so much there's hardly enough left for us. We'll have all the more to eat now they aren't here."

"That's good," said Buster. Then supper was ready and Baby Bunt and all the other rabbit children sat very nicely at the table waiting their turn to be served. Of course company came first.

Now it happened I don't know, but when Uncle Wiggly was passing Baby Bunt a jam tart, the little orphan rabbit reached for it in such a hurry that she knocked it on the clean tablecloth and made a great smear of red raspberry jam.

"Oh, dear!" said Baby Bunt. "I've made Uncle Wigg's tablecloth all jam, Oh, dear!"

"Never mind, my dear," said Nurse Jane. "I'll wash the stain out and so will all everyone and it was a fine supper for the lady and gentleman pigs who ate a great deal though they were polite about it."

After supper the children played games while Mr. and Mrs. Longears talked with Mr. and Mrs. Twistytail. Then Nurse Jane called Uncle Wiggly out to the kitchen and said:

"The tablecloth is jammed out of your tablecloth, Mr. Longears. Do you want to hang it out on the line?"

"Oh, surely," said the bunny uncle. So he did this and then went back to talk to Mr. Twistytail about how things were after the election. The pigs stayed quite late and once Nurse Jane went into the room and, excusing herself, she started to hang the tablecloth over the bunny's head so he looked like something left over from Halloween.

"But it's a good thing he did. For the Bob Cat was sneaking around. And when the Bob Cat saw that white, strange figure, which was only Uncle Wiggly wrapped in the tablecloth, the Bob Cat gave a howl and ran away saying:

"Oh, it's a ghost! It's a ghost! And Mr. Longears laughed."

And if the jamman still brings some coal for breakfast so the canary bird can fry the watermelon for the gold fish, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggly's popcorn.

Horoscope

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 12, 1932

Benefic aspects dominate for the horoscope for today, according to astrology. It is a day especially auspicious for attending to strictly personal business.

Under this planetary rule the stars encourage the careful maintenance of what ever is deemed most precious in mental or material possessions.

The day seems to aid all who have shunned the heights, casting before them the shadows of enlarged personalities.

This should be a lucky day for all who seek refuge in the protection of the stars. Power are supposed to be responsive and sympathetic to the rule of the stars. All the signs seem to be reassuring to persons of great influence or wealth. They are under important service to the sun, which is foretold.

There is a tremendous significance as to go on in the world, astrologers announce. The United States is to be the most fortunate of all countries.

This is a favorable day for starting an ocean voyage or for visiting friends. The stars smile on persons who desire to escape from their present surroundings.

Again optimistic prophecies are made by astrologers, who foresee a slow but sure recovery of business, although many changes in methods are indicated.

There is a sign promising a new valuation regarding friendships and social contacts of various degrees of intimacy. Human relationships are to be accepted with an added sense of respect and understanding. The wise will be practical as well as visionary in the management of their personal responsibilities.

Joseph Hopkinson, jurist and author of "The Columbian" was born on the day,

RED CROSS FUND DONE

Organization Will Have to Cease Humanitarian Work If Drive Fails

Unless generous donations are received at the local headquarters of the Canadian Red Cross, 317 Belmont House, the work of that organization must cease, it was revealed in an appeal made by Fred Landsberg, honorary treasurer of the British Columbia branch.

"Our funds are exhausted," he said. "If contributions are not forthcoming we will not be able to go on serving those whom we have been helping in this province."

"About half of the 200 ex-servicemen in Escondido do not get any pay or allowances. They are depending on the Red Cross for their little comforts which make their lives endurable. For many of them the only friends they see are the Red Cross ladies who visit them regularly. Please give some consideration to the men who gave their best to be of service to their country, who have been afflicted with some sickness or disease incurred during the war and confined to the hospital, receiving no help either by way of pension or otherwise and who may be deprived of the bit of comfort and kindness rendered to them through the good offices of the Red Cross Society."

WORK IN NORTHLAND

"Then there are the settlers in the Peace River block. About 8,500 people are trying to make homes and a living in that part of the province. Many of them went in there with very little and because of the drought and depression they have nothing now. The government looks after ordinary relief but the Red Cross, through its outpost hospitals, is called upon for help in special cases, as well as for nursing care in sickness, accident and childbirth. Everyone agrees that the nurses are doing splendid work up there—work that has saved the lives of scores of those people who have ceased the suffering of hundreds. This work will have to end if sufficient contributions are not made to the Red Cross."

"One more accomplishment of the Red Cross Society is the Junior Red Cross Branch. A year ago we had 1,300 juniors, 10-day-old to 16-year-olds, who are unselfish and self-sacrificing, raising money continuously to help and support and maintain crippled children in the Balmoral or in the hospitals of British Columbia. When I took over the trusteeship of the Red Cross Society in British Columbia the only funds available was money in the bank which was earmarked for the 'Crippled Children Fund' and could not be used for anything else but the care of crippled children."

"The work done by the Red Cross is not duplicated either by the churches, service clubs, or any other philanthropic organizations in existence and therefore, I am forced to appeal to the citizens to send me funds to enable the Red Cross to carry on its good work in the future as it has done in the past. Send me your donation. Address it whatever it is to: Fred Landsberg, or the Canadian Red Cross Office, 317 Belmont House, Victoria. We need it. The Red Cross needs it urgently."

MANY PROTEST BUT FEW RIDE

Saanich Council Asked to Contest Reduced Bus Service to Mt. Newton

To protest against the reduction of the bus service to Mt. Newton district of North Saanich, a large delegation of residents yesterday evening waited in the Saanich Council room. H. L. Salmon said the bus was poorly patronized and the residents did not wish to be unreasonable. A car was well scheduled from Mt. Newton to the city in the morning and he was personally convinced that residents would be conveyed home on cars serving other routes. Most of the residents had their own cars or traveled with neighbors. Several members of the delegation protested the reduced service as a backward step injurious to the district.

F. Evans said the company had contracted to keep all routes in operation as a part of the consideration of the franchise. Beve Crouch said the council had found the Vancouver Island Coach Lines very reasonable. "They are using much money in Saanich. It would be just too bad if they threw up the Saanich services and withdrew altogether. I do not know what circumstances would do under such circumstances," the reve commented. Arrangements were then made for joint delegation of residents and the council to interview the Coach Lines management.

SAANICH GIVES GAS FRANCHISE

Contract For Extension of Mains in Urban Areas Signed Yesterday

The cost of the extensions will be not less than $20,000, the company having agreed to expend that amount in Saanich within two years. The development will be a part of an expansion programme estimated at between $80,000 and $100,000, which will embrace Esquimalt and Oak Bay as well as the well settled areas of urban Saanich.

DIED
DITCHBURN—At the family residence, 353 Linden Avenue, at an early hour this morning, William Ditchburn, aged 67 years, his sixty-ninth year. He was former Commissioner of Indian Affairs, B.C., and was considered a wise arbitrator among the Indians who came under his jurisdiction. Having acted in that capacity for more than twenty years, he was forced to retire from service last summer on account of ill health. Mr. Ditchburn had long been a resident of Victoria and would have attained the age of seventy next month. In his younger days he was a noted athlete and was prominent as a lacrosse player in the days when British Columbia was pre-eminent in this field of sport. He was married to Mrs. Ditchburn, nee Smith, who was born in England and had resided in the province for many years. He is survived by his widow and four children, John A. Ditchburn, of Vancouver, and Douglas of Victoria; also one daughter, Miss Margaret Ditchburn, of Winnipeg. One son, Raymond Ditchburn, is residing at home, and a sister, Mrs. R. Trotter, residing in London, Ontario. The remains are resting at the Sands Mortuary Ltd., Chapel, where final arrangements will be announced later.

SMITH—On Wednesday, November 9, at the Royal Jubilee Hospital, William John Smith, aged fifty-nine years, of 2128 Belmont Avenue. The late Mr. Smith was born in England and had resided in the province for many years. He is survived by his widow and four children, John A. Ditchburn, of Vancouver, and Douglas of Victoria; also one daughter, Miss Margaret Ditchburn, of Winnipeg. One son, Raymond Ditchburn, is residing at home, and a sister, Mrs. R. Trotter, residing in London, Ontario. The remains are resting at the Sands Mortuary Ltd., Chapel, where final arrangements will be announced later.

O'CONNELL—On Tuesday, Nov. 8, at St. Joseph's Hospital, Thomas O'Connell, aged seventy-five years, of 1112 McKenna Street. The late Mr. O'Connell was born in Cork, Ireland, and had been a resident of the province for many years. He is survived by four sons, John, Daniel, Michael and Thomas, and two daughters, Mrs. Thomas Leahy and Mrs. E. A. Lineham. Also one son, Catherine and Charlotte, and twenty-eight grandchildren and six great-grandchildren. The funeral will take place on Saturday morning, proceeding from the family residence to St. Andrew's Cathedral, where mass will be celebrated at 9 o'clock. Rev. Father A. Gaudet will be the celebrant. The interment will be in the family plot at Ross Bay Cemetery. (Cork and Dublin papers please copy.)

CROUCH MAY RUN FOR LEGISLATURE

Reeveship Candidature Rests on Support of Council For One of Members

Otherwise He May Run in Saanich as Independent

Unless the members of the Saanich Council support one of their number as a candidate for the reeveship, Reeves Crouch will be a candidate for re-election for a seventh term as chief magistrate of Saanich.

Reeves Crouch was asked whether he was contemplating entering any larger political field. He said he had been considering running in Saanich as an independent in the next provincial elections, but he had not finally made up his mind.

Following adjournment of the council yesterday evening the reeve said he would delay making an announcement until Thursday, December 1, to enable the members of the council to discuss the matter among themselves. He urged the importance of having an experienced administrator in office during the coming year.

Reeve Crouch read the following prepared statement:

"I have had the honor of being reeve and presiding at the meetings of the Saanich Council for the last six years. It is not necessary for me to say that during the past year or two the duties of reeve and councillor have been very heavy, and only for the splendid cooperation and backing I have received from every member of the council, it would have been impossible for me to do so. There are members on the present council who have been on the Saanich Council for quite a number of years and understand the problems and have the experience in municipal affairs which, in my opinion, at a time like this is absolutely necessary for any man seeking the position of reeve to have."

"If any member of the present council desires to be a candidate for the office of reeve, and the other members of the council are willing to support him, then I am quite willing to support him, and do my utmost towards his election."

Reeve Crouch said he was not in a position to say whether he would run in Saanich as an independent or as a candidate of the council. He said he would make his decision after consulting with the members of the council.

MARCH ON ROME CELEBRATED BY 25,000 FASCISTS

Twenty-five thousand black-shirts, thousands bearing standards, crowded the Piazza Venezia at Rome, Italy, recently, as shown above, and pledged renewed allegiance to their leader, Premier Benito Mussolini, at the celebration of the tenth anniversary of the Fascist march on Rome. The inset shows Il Duce as he exhorted his followers to hold fast to the gains accomplished in the last decade. He was wearing the familiar black shirt with but one decoration—that commemorating the march on Rome.

Disease Germs Find Many Ways Of Entering Body To Attack

But Science Fights to Keep Them Out

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN

Germs can get into the body in all sorts of ways, with food and water, by inhaling, through open wounds on the skin, by the bite of an insect as occurs with mosquitoes in malaria and yellow fever, ticks in Texas fever, fleas in plague, and tsetse flies in African sleeping sickness.

Obviously, when the means by which the germs get into the body are understood, scientific medicine develops methods for keeping them out. When the means are not understood, as occurs for instance in infantile paralysis, prevention is difficult.

Sometimes the germs produce disease by developing a poison which is then absorbed by the body and, after absorption, acts on the nerves or the muscles or the blood vessels. Sometimes the germs themselves gradually break up and the products of their disintegration are poisonous.

Sometimes clumps of germs float around in the blood and cause death by developing in overabundance in the blood. On other occasions the germs may attack certain organs of the body and so injure these organs that death ensues.

It has been said that the germs like to pick out certain places in which to live under the conditions which suit them best. This happens, for instance, with a germ called the pneumococcus, which settles in the lungs and produces pneumonia, but which also may infect the eye or the spine.

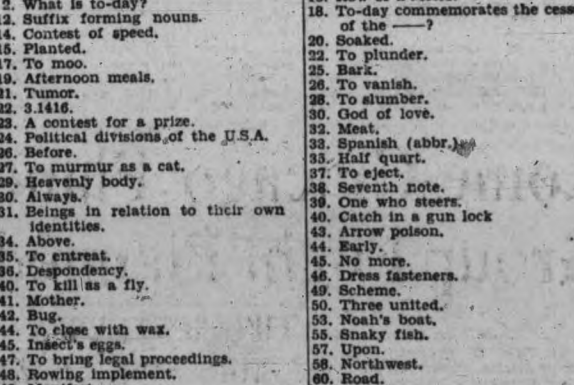

It occurs with the germs of meningitis, which practically always settle on the coverings of the spinal cord and of the brain, the typhoid germ which settles in the intestines, the germs of lockjaw and of hydrophobia and of epidemic encephalitis which attack the nervous system.

On the other hand, there are some germs, like those of tuberculosis, which may affect any tissue in the human body although preferably entering by way of the lungs.

There is tuberculosis of bones, of joints, of the eye, and of the nervous system. The organism that causes syphilis actually attacks every organ and tissue in the human body.

Mrs. Marion Isabel Angus, well-known Victoria author, has an interesting article in this month's Chamber's Journal on "The Forbidden Pleasure." Mrs. Angus is the author of "Women Untraveled" and "Fragrant Wisdom."

NON-STOP SHOW WILL CONTINUE

Variety of Entertainment at Crystal Garden Resuming To-day

The Canadian Co-operative Non-stop Vaudeville at the Crystal Garden Theatre resumed its performances today after being obliged to postpone on Wednesday and Thursday owing to a previous letting of the theatre.

All those patrons who have seen the performance at the beginning of the week have given great praise for the various performers and have expressed surprise at the fine talent displayed.

Next week there will be a change of programme with several new artists, and those of the present cast remaining will give fresh turns. It is the aim of the management to try and please all tastes and with twenty different turns this should not be difficult.

In this space it is only possible to give a brief mention of each artist. Miss Mabel Wells gives an acrobatic dance of unusual merit; the two Little Sisters of Toronto give a brilliant performance on the piano and are professional artists who have performed for a long time in the United States; little Marguerite Hincman, child dancer, is like a bit of dainty Dresden china, only eight years old, and has been on the stage since she was three; Zoe Milsand and Leonard Wagstaffe give a most charming exhibition of ballroom dancing; Miss Daisy Borrowman gives Spanish and Gypsy dances with great fire and agility; Charles von Storch gives a strong man act, and later with his partner, Teddy Beala, an exhibition of boxing; Miss Gertrude Partridge gives two graceful classical dances, while Miss Roberta Balcom appears in two clever dances in the pierrot style.

Capt. Eric Chalmers recites a clever and touching monologue. Barbara Hall also contributes monologues in the professional manner. She is a daughter of a well-known actress of the Sir Barry Jackson Co. Mrs. and Miss Hudson give song and dance recitals in a sympathetic and bright manner, while Miss Grace Atfield on the banjo and Albert Harman as a clog dancer give excellent performances. So the public will realize there is infinite variety.

ROMANO THEATRE
 The way to a man's heart might be through his stomach, but Maria Nixon delightfully proves otherwise in "Amateur Daddy." Warner Baxter's latest starring vehicle to-day at the Romano Theatre today.

"Amateur Daddy" was filmed from a screen adaptation of Mildred Cram's novel, and again presents Baxter as a kindly bachelor who finds happiness through deeds of kindness to orphan waifs as he did in "Daddy Long Legs." John Blystone directed.

DOMINION THEATRE
 "The Big Broadcast," romantic comedy starring the outstanding radio personalities of the day and a group of movie favorites, ends its run at the Dominion Theatre today.

Stuart Erwin, Bing Crosby, and Leila Hyams head the cast of the picture, with these radio stars lending assistance. Burns and Allen, Kate Smith, the Miller Brothers, the Boswell Sisters, Arthur Tracy (The Street Singer), Vincent Lopez and his Orchestra and Cab Calloway and his Orchestra.

The picture, directed by Frank Tuttle, is from the play, "Wild Waves," by William Fox Marley.

CAPITOL THEATRE
 "The Phantom President," political comedy, featuring George M. Cohan, Claudette Colbert and Jimmy Durante, is shown at the Capitol Theatre to-day.

The picture deals with a presidential campaign, with Cohan, making his talking picture debut after a quarter of a century of stage success, in a dual role—a candidate lacking personality to win votes, and a medicine-show barker hired to impersonate him because he is not on a ring for him, but a personality-losing figure.

PLAYHOUSE THEATRE
 Three Scotty pups, from the same litter, enact the role of one Scotty pup in "Husband's Holiday." Paramount's absorbing romance-drama of family life at the Playhouse Theatre. As soon as one pup got tired, his brother replaced him, during the filming of the scene in which they appear.

COLUMBIA THEATRE
 Barbara Weeks, the heroine in Buck Jones' latest Columbia picture, "White Eagle," rides side saddle in the picture because it was discovered that the lady-like girls of 1928, the time of the film's story, did not straddle their mounts, but rode in genteel manner side saddle.

Now Miss Weeks, after having trained herself to become an excellent rider, has been compelled to learn how to ride side saddle.

Jones plays the role of an Indian Pony Express rider in the stirring days of 1868 around Fort Dodge, Nevada. Others in the cast are Jason Robards, Robert Ellis, Ward Bond, Frank Camp, Robert Elliott and Frank Hagney. Lambert Hillyer directed the production which is showing at the Columbia Theatre.

COMING TO DOMINION
 A wedding gown containing sixty-five yards of silk net and 120 yards of silk lace is worn by Norma Shearer in "Smilin' Through," her latest talking picture, which is coming to the Dominion Theatre. The story, laid in England, covers two periods, 1864 and 1914 with Miss Shearer playing a dual role. It is in the earlier sequences that she wears the voluminous wedding gown which was designed by Adrian and made at the studio by the combined efforts of eleven wardrobe experts.

English Picture On Empire Screen

Religion came to the rescue of the cinematographic art during the filming of "Down Our Street," the Paramount British production showing to-day at the Empire Theatre.

A huge scene representing one of the tangle-by-ways of London's least fashionable residential quarters, is one of the attractions of this picture. Crowded with typical East Enders, all the activities of Sunday morning in a crowded tenement area are in full swing. A Salvation Army band is dispensing its distinctive cheerful yet uplifting melodies.

HE FOUND THEY LET GEORGE DO IT

BY ROBERT GRANDON
 Hollywood, Cal.—At the Roosevelt Roof this noon, beheld the Brents luncheon together. . . and it seems as if Ruth . . . ne Chatterton . . . and George . . . still Brent . . . are destined to be the happiest married pair on the west coast.

Colorful to the extreme has Brent's career been, and he has lived up to his name in that when anything was to be done, they usually let George do it. Born in Dublin on March 15, 1904, . . . has black Irish hair and Irish blue eyes and is a true two-fisted Irishman. . . His youth was spent in America, but he returned to Dublin College to police. The Irish revolution lured him to adventure and he risked his life as a messenger, carrying messages into dangerous territory, the discovery of which meant death as a spy.

Was a stoker on a freighter . . . a blacksmith for a time . . . a sheepherder . . . Then he landed in Denver, Colorado, and became a stock actor. After that came Broadway with Alice Brady . . . and success . . . Became leading man for Ruth . . . and took the contract for life.

It's George's second marriage as it is Ruth's, since she divorced Ralph Forbes on August 12 and married George the next day. . . Brent's first wife was Helen L. Lewis . . . who was his leading lady when he married her in Hartford, Conn. . . That was in 1927, when George was known as George Nolan, leading man of the Suffolk Theatre-Stock Co. He was divorced two years later in Los Angeles.

Contrary to general belief, George and Ruth have known each other for six years. . . They met on Broadway when they were playing on the stage.

CATHOLIC SCHOOL CONTINUES APPEAL

St. Louis College Heavy Loser, Priest Testifies, Asking $50,000 Assessment Cut

Hearing before Mr. Justice D. A. McDonald of the Supreme Court of the appeal against the city's assessment of $50,000 on the new St. Louis College will be continued at 2 o'clock next Monday afternoon.

On behalf of the Christian Brothers who conduct the college as a parochial school, Father Colleton testified that they had been operating the school at a heavy annual loss which reached to over $50,000 last year, and might be forced to give up the school unless their costs were cut down.

The appeal has been carried to the courts by C. H. O'Halloran as counsel for the Catholic Bishop of Victoria.

Mr. O'Halloran's witnesses proposed a cut in the assessment down to around $25,000 on the grounds that the building as a commercial enterprise could not earn on a capital higher than that.

George O'Neil, city assessor, in his concluding evidence yesterday, claimed the Bishop had paid over $50,000 for the college as a new structure, only last year and the city had valued it at that price. Mr. O'Neil said in this he was following out the section of the Municipal Act as follows: "For the purposes of taxation, land, except as hereinafter provided, shall be assessed at its actual value, and improvements shall be assessed for the amount of the difference between the actual value of the land if there were no improvements and the value of the land with improvements."

MURRI, ITALIAN SURGEON, DIES

Bologna, Italy, Nov. 11.—Augusto Murri, once regarded as Italy's greatest surgeon, died of apoplexy to-day, aged ninety-one.

His death recalls the family mystery which surrounded the murder of a son-in-law thirty years ago. Dr. Murri's son, Tullio, was sentenced to seven years in prison. He died last year, and it was said he had left a written revelation to be opened only after his father's death.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Edward F. L. Sturdee, general passenger agent, Canadian Pacific Railway, Vancouver, arrived at the Empress Hotel to-day with Mrs. Sturdee. Mr. Sturdee stated he was taking a swing around the Sound, leaving this afternoon for Seattle.

The weekly meeting of the Working Class Educational League will be held this evening at 7:30 o'clock. At 8 o'clock the meeting will be open to all ex-servicemen and their friends. Good speakers will address the meeting, which will be held at 701 View Street.

Finding of a motorcycle on the beach at the foot of Cook Street yesterday propounded somewhat of a mystery for police traffic officials. F. W. Wenden, H.M.C.S. Vancouver, said he had left the machine parked in the city the night before, and could not explain how it came to be on the beach. It is presumed the motorcycle was stolen and driven over the bank by the thief.

Two automobiles going in the same direction on Moss Street collided at the intersection of Carnarvon Street yesterday afternoon when the front machine stopped to allow another car traveling on Carnarvon to pass. E. F. Young, 1455 Hamley Street, was driving the first machine, and as he approached the intersection intending to turn, another car came east on Carnarvon. He stopped and a car driven by A. J. Heard, 1443 Arnold Street, collided with the rear of his car. The police report recorded damage to both machines was slight.

The Canadian National Railway will have the sympathetic support of Saanich in a pending appeal to the Railway Board, against being required to fence a part of its right-of-way through Saanich. The council was highly diverted when notified of the application yesterday evening. Several miles of line, which the railway desires to leave unfenced, traverse the centre of Lost Lake. The only living things that can get there are seagulls or ducks, so long as the approaches are cattle-guarded, councillors commented.

Impressions of a recent visit to England, Scotland and Ireland were given by Reginald Hayward, M.P., to members of the Victoria and Island Life Underwriters' Association at a luncheon meeting in Spencer's private dining-room yesterday. The speaker was introduced by Col. Lorne Ross and Reginald Hayward moved the vote of thanks. R. N. E. Harris announced that the L.U.I. classes would commence Monday evening at 8 o'clock in the offices of the Metropolitan Life in the Union Building. J. R. Nicholson, newly appointed manager of the Great West Life Assurance Co. in Victoria, was introduced to the members.

Removal of the fountain from Parliament Square and transfer of the famous rose garden to beds located around the border of the lawn, would appear the projects of the Parliament Buildings. Hon. R. W. Bruhn was advised Wednesday by F. B. Pemberton, Richard Layritz and Norman Rast, a voluntary committee which last week studied the grounds in association with Henry Whittaker, chief architect. The committee strongly advocated immediate removal of dead maple trees bordering the grounds, and the construction of a sunken garden on the west side of the buildings and location of a lily pond at the rear of the grounds. The committee has also advised on methods of masking old buildings on Superior and Menzies Streets.

The following friends acted as pallbearers: H. Davies, H. Gardner, E. Scroggs, W. Griffin, C. Chattell and H. Daniels. The remains were laid at rest at Colwood Cemetery.

CHURCH SCHOOL CLASSES CLOSE

Rev. Dr. W. G. Wilson Delivers Inspirational Address to Youth Leaders

An expression of his lack of faith in the ability of men and women of his own generation making over the world and the belief that the responsibility and the task must be placed in the hands of youth was voiced by Rev. Dr. W. G. Wilson in his inspirational address at the closing sessions of the Leadership Training School in Memorial Hall yesterday evening.

The address was the feature of the evening and was warmly applauded by the youth leaders attending the school. Rev. M. S. Richardson, of Emmanuel Baptist, moved a vote of thanks to the faculty of the school and J. Simpson seconded it. The Bishop of Cariboo responded for the faculty.

Leonard Nichols, Mollie Humphries, Louise Patterson and Rev. A. M. Atcheson, representing the Baptist, Anglican, Presbyterian and United Church denominations, respectively, gave short talks thanking the staff and expressing the appreciation with which their teaching work was regarded.

Thanks were also extended to the Christ Church Cathedral staff for the use of the Memorial Hall and many courtesies, while Mr. Simpson extolled the work of Rev. Bruce Gray, president of the Religious Education Council.

SEEKS SUPPORT FOR GOVERNMENT PLANS

Von Papen Invites Hitler and Other German Political Leaders to Confer on Economic Proposals

Berlin, Nov. 11.—Chancellor Franz von Papen invited Adolf Hitler and four other political party leaders to-day to a meeting to determine how far they are willing to support the government in its political and economic programme.

Others invited, in accordance with instructions given to the Chancellor by President von Hindenburg, were Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, Nationalist; Dr. Ludwig Kaas, Centrist; Herr Schaeffer, Bavarian Populist; and Edward Dingeldey, German Populist.

In government circles it was intimated that if Hitler, Nationalist Socialist Party leader, should refuse to meet with the Chancellor, it was doubtful whether President von Hindenburg would receive him at a later stage in the negotiations.

In so far as party newspapers reflect the opinion of the respective leaders, the National Socialists, Centrists and the Bavarian People's Party oppose the Chancellor personally, but are willing to co-operate in a "cabinet of national concentration."

NORMAL OFFERS PIRATE PLAY

"Passing of Late Capt. Crow" Cleverly Presented Yesterday

Under the capable direction of Mr. Wood, assisted by Mr. Gaitkell, members of class C of the Normal School enacted the play entitled, "The Passing of the Late Captain Crow," yesterday afternoon in the school auditorium.

The stage setting depicted the cabin of a pirate vessel at anchor in the harbor of a captured town in the Spanish colonies. The costumes and scenery were descriptive of the days of piracy.

As an opening exercise, Mr. Ross, president of the Literary Society, led the students in the singing of "O Canada." Mr. Ashford, accompanied by Mr. Grant, then rendered a violin solo, selection from the "Rhapsody in Blue." The trend of the story was as follows: Having looted the town, the pirate crew in checking up discover to their chagrin that each man's share of the loot is missing. The cause of the loss is revealed to be a cunning ruse of the town's mayor, who had lured the pirates to the town and then betrayed them.

At this critical moment Capt. Crow enters the cabin considerably inebriated. Mutiny and murder are in the air, but the tension is relieved by the comic remarks of one of the crew, who has drunk too much rum. Beyond control, Capt. Crow finally retreats to his cabin to sleep off his heavy potations.

After much discussion the crew finally decide to murder him. Going into his cabin they discover that the Capt. is already dead. They then decide to give him burial immediately. The tragedy of these last rites is greatly relieved by a comic scene rendered by the muddin' pirate, Capt. Crow is then acted as pallbearer: H. Davies, H. Gardner, E. Scroggs, W. Griffin, C. Chattell and H. Daniels. The remains were laid at rest at Colwood Cemetery.

The setting of the students taking part was very commendable and the cast was as follows: Ralph Glasby (wounded pirate), Gaitkell (captain), (lean, dark, vicious pirate), McIlroy; Jack Lurch (gentleman pirate), Bobbitt; Spanish captive, Deloume; Capt. Crow (captain of vessel), Leonard; Roger Pye (drunken pirate), Hall; Enoch Riddle (grizzled old seadog), Lowe, and Dave Crisp, young pirate), Holtum.

Birthday Greetings Are Extended To-day To—

DAVID RULE BREMMER
R. H. POWELL

Yesterday was the birthday of R. H. "Rollie" Powell, well-known hardware merchant of Government Street, and a native son of Victoria. A former police commissioner and a prominent Conservative worker, Mr. Powell is widely known in thoroughbred racing circles, being the owner of the "Cartan Stable," under which colors won the local mares Macusha II and Rosamond, who usually thrill the followers once a year by cantering home as long as they can.

Mr. Powell possesses a rich tenor voice, which is in much demand by his friends at the Pacific Club, whom he frequently entertains with pleasing renditions of the latest hits.

David Rule Bremmer, one of the few remaining heroes of the Riel Rebellion, celebrates his birthday to-day. He was born in Huron County, Ontario, in 1865, and came to Winnipeg in 1885. He was one of the first to volunteer for service when the Riel Rebellion broke out in 1885, going to the front with the 91st Regiment of Winnipeg. After Riel surrendered on May 12, the task of rounding up Big Bear's band was given the 91st, whose men had to undergo untold hardships and risks, when they accomplished their objective only by driving the leg of the marauders into the Cold Lake region where starvation forced surrender late in July. From the campaign, Capt. Bremmer returned to the coast in 1897, but returned to Winnipeg in 1899 to enter the building and real estate business. He became prominent as an operator in the Winnipeg grain pit at the time "Bob" Rogers, James Stewart and Bruce McLean were rising to the zenith of their careers there. In 1909 he went to Mexico, where he spent much of his time managing a rubber plantation until he had the experience of going through the Mexican Revolution of 1910-11, when the president was shot. Fifteen years ago he came with his family to reside in Victoria. He takes a keen interest in church and political affairs, and is also active in the British campaign, where with Capt. A. Mulcahy, Major Beaumont Boggs, Capt. Fred Exham and six or seven others, Capt. Bremmer is one of the few dwindling but ever stalwart little group of cohorts of the Riel Rebellion. A couple of years ago Capt. Bremmer won the city checker championship and is one of the ace players on the civic outdoor board in Beacon Hill Park.

"JAFSIE" SEES SUSPECT IN LINDY CASE
Dr. John F. Condon, right, the "Jafsie" who acted as intermediary in the Lindbergh kidnapping case, peered closely at Arthur Barry, left, notorious jewel thief and prison fugitive, when the latter was brought before him in Newark, N.J., police headquarters. Barry had been suspected of complicity in the crime, and this picture shows him sitting, handcuffed, under Dr. Condon's scrutiny. But Condon failed to identify the criminal, who then was returned to Auburn penitentiary, from which he escaped two years ago.

AD REFUSED EVICTION CASE
No action will be taken by Saanich Municipality to provide a family home to be evicted with shelter. Yesterday evening the council was advised by its unemployment committee that the man in question had received over $321 in goods and cash in direct relief for himself, his wife and six children under fifteen years. The man was stated to have also been assisted with rent, by a grant from charity fund. It was claimed he had paid no water or rent for some months.

The man was stated to be the owner of a sedan automobile which was in constant use. Pending disposal of the sedan, the council refused to consider extending assistance to the man.

It was considered the man was making a test case of his eviction and if the council weakened the cost to the ratepayers would amount to $30,000 annually, there being more than 100 similar instances in Saanich.

FOURINDEX PAY HONOR ARMISTICE
Brigadier-General Sir Charles Delmeida, who was chief of the British military mission on the Italian front during the war, and later chief of the British military mission to Australia, was the guest of the Armistice eve dinner and commemorative ceremony of the Fourindex Company No. 6 yesterday evening under Officer Commanding Dudley H. Green.

The Italian debate at Caporetto was described by Sir Charles. The chief cause of the collapse, he said, was the defeatist propaganda poured into the Italians in the army line and at home by Austrian cardinals at the Vatican. However, who worked through their position to bring about an Austrian victory.

The Italian national spirit recovered itself and stiffened by the British units which were hurried to the Italian front. Some back a few months later with the smashing triumph against the invaders from the north. In this victory the Italians took half a million prisoners and brought about the collapse of the Austrian empire.

During the evening an historical play was produced on the stage by the dramatic wing of the company with "Bunny" Hurn, Sergeant-Major E. Maynard, Percy Beasley, Bob Yates and Oliver Fentles in the leading roles under the stage direction of Fourindex Ciceri.

To the music of the bagpipes played by Pipe-Major Wainwright the members of the company carried out their annual parade to the Cenotaph Parliament Square just before midnight. There they laid the Fourindex wreath at the base of the monument and paid the customary silent tribute.

Small Crowds Major Hockey Teams Open Season

THE Detroit Red Wings Pull Big Surprise MIRROR By Beating Chicago

Sarnia Imperials Serious Threat for Canadian Football Title

Have One of Greatest Scoring Lines Gathered in Eastern Ranks

Eddie Cudworth, Canadian Marathon Star, Takes Honors for Gameness

SARNIA is the team to beat in the Canadian football play-offs this year.

This is becoming more and more apparent every week. The Imperials have yet to taste defeat this season, and in the past four years have won the O.F.A.U. title three times, only to be eliminated in the early play-offs.

This year, with practically the same team as last, with the addition of a star from the U.S. and one or two others from lower ranks, they have swept through to another championship.

With Norman Perry, Summer Stirling and Alex Hogg on the backfield, they have a half line that bows to none in the country. There isn't a kicker in Canada who can boot them as consistently as this same Stirling, and the trio have scored more points this season than any other major league line. Hayes tops the scorers with thirty-four points; Stirling is next with twenty-seven, and Perry is third with twenty. This gives them a total of five games of eighty-one points out of 133 scored by the entire team. And that total almost triples what any other team in Eastern Canada has scored.

They have, in those five games, scored sixteen touchdowns, seven field goals and kicked sixteen points, which tops Turville's record to date by three points. In addition they have Parasc, their United States import, and Hayes who can kick field goals, which tops Turville's record to date by three points. In addition they have Parasc, their United States import, and Hayes who can kick field goals, which tops Turville's record to date by three points.

Sarnia, as a city, is football crazy. It is undoubtedly the football centre of Canada. They have more players and more teams than any other city in Canada, and that goes for Toronto, too.

It is no wonder they have smart players from the ground up. They specialize in football, like Hamilton does in track athletics. And it is about time the city was rewarded by a rugby championship—at least of Eastern Canada.

To Eddie Cudworth, 1932 Canadian marathon champion, goes the prize for gameness and courage.

Eddie recently entered in a 24-mile marathon. He was never in the race from the start. He landed behind in twentieth or thirtieth position, plugging along slowly and—as it turned out later—painfully.

At the five-mile mark one of the officials drew up alongside Cudworth and asked what the matter was.

"Nothing," Eddie replied, "Just taking it easy."

As the race progressed a few miles the officials decided that Eddie should be withdrawn. He had developed a noticeable limp which was obviously impeding his progress.

At the ten-mile mark the officials were waiting in hope of taking him from the race for the second attempt. "Come on, Eddie, we're taking you out," one of them called. Eddie shook his head stubbornly and limped on. The official followed him, then began the strangest debate ever enacted on a marathon course.

The official pleaded with Eddie to retire and save himself for another race. The persistent Eddie refused and was determined to finish. It was peculiar in the fact that the race was still in its early stages, and while he was slowing down almost to the walk, he refused to quit.

The officials became perturbed. Eddie Cudworth, only a youth of twenty, was in grave danger of burning himself out or permanently injuring his leg. The marathon officials are looking to him for great things and their efforts to take him from the race were entirely unselfish and sincere.

Perhaps they violated the rules, when they finally took him out. Perhaps he has a good reason for being peeved about their action. But the fact remains that it took something equivalent to force to make the Canadian marathon champion withdraw from the race.

New York, Nov. 11.—The king of winter sports, hockey, has raised its annual late-autumn challenge to the supremacy of other winter athletics, but three games which started the National Hockey League season yesterday evening drew only crowds of ordinary week-day proportions, far short of what might have been expected for the "grand" opening.

MAT BATTLE NO CONTEST

Forsgren-Thye Bout at Vancouver Called Off When Former Injures Eye

Vancouver, Nov. 11.—Jack Forsgren, 211-pound Vancouver fireman, and Ted Thye, 195, Portland, went four blood-smeared rounds yesterday evening in the main event on the wrestling card but finished the night without either having the decision. The match was declared no contest when Forsgren was thrown from the ring in the fourth and suffered a badly cut eye and was unable to continue.

Thye drew first blood in the second round when he secured a fall with a series of flying wristlocks and a body press. Forsgren came out with a leap in the next round, eager to even things up and a few well-placed shoulder butts softened the Portlander enough for the fireman to toss him out of the ring for the tying fall.

Both were out for blood in the fourth. Thye finally heaved Forsgren through the ropes and when the latter picked himself up he found a bad slash over his eye and the match was declared no contest.

BOB MEYERS WINS

Bob Meyers, Portland, 165, grabbed off the decision in the semi-final with Sailor French, Los Angeles, 176. The Portlander used an airplane spin and body press to take a fall in the fourth and was awarded the match when French was unable to answer the bell for the next round.

In the curtain raiser, Bull Brentana, Chicago, 160, took a lone fall to defeat Harold Hebert, Salt Lake City, 154. Brentana pinned Hebert in the second with a Japanese arm lock, Hebert conceding the fall.

On Short Pitches Bob Varies Stance

By JOE GLASS

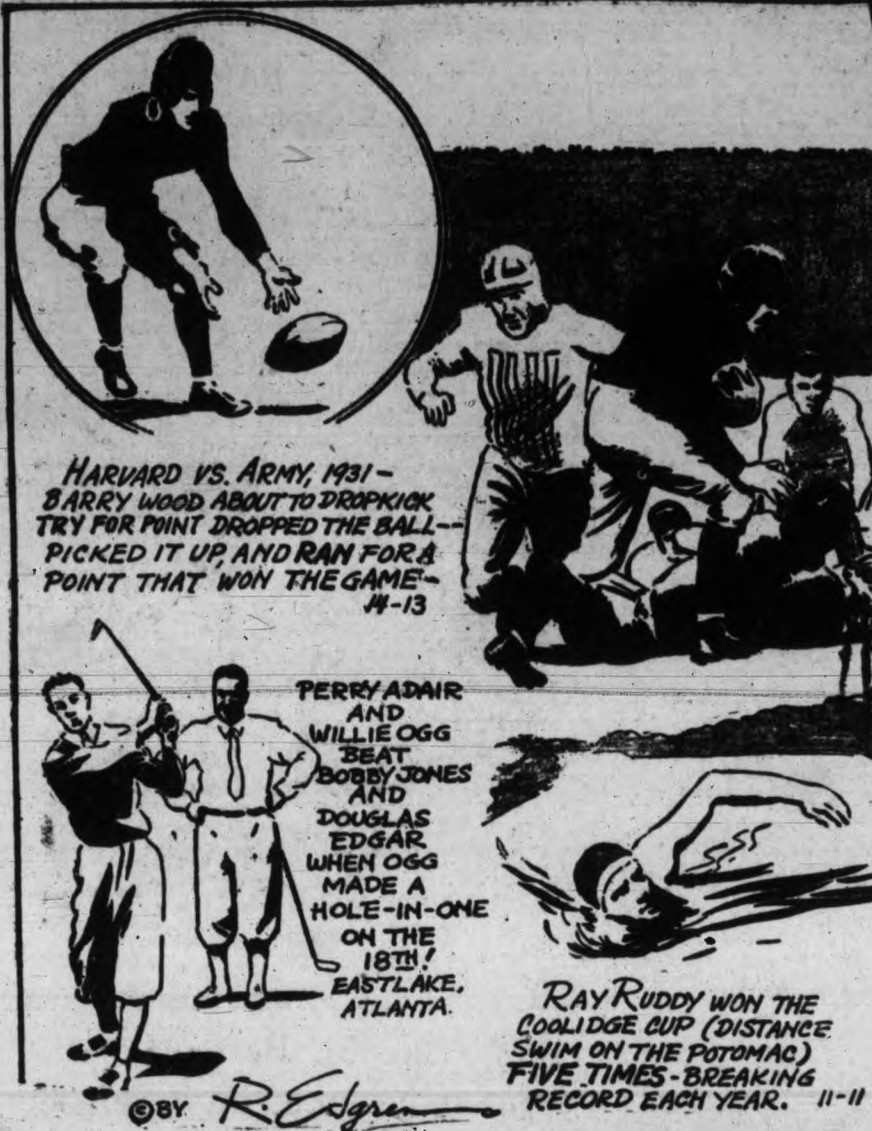

You frequently see golfers using a full nubbick shot for certain pitches requiring a lot of loft. Bobby Jones is no exception. However, on pitches above 100 yards he plays the ball off his right foot, with his hands rather ahead of it, because the distance to be gained calls for a forceful, descending blow that will produce backspin. But when he has a shorter pitch to make—say one of seventy-five yards, or under—he plays the ball off his left heel, with the clubface laid back and open. He wants both backspin and loft, and, his yardage being shorter, it is necessary to get the ball up more quickly.

Donie Bush Named Cincinnati Pilot

Former Manager of Pittsburgh Pirates Gets One-year Contract to Handle Reds

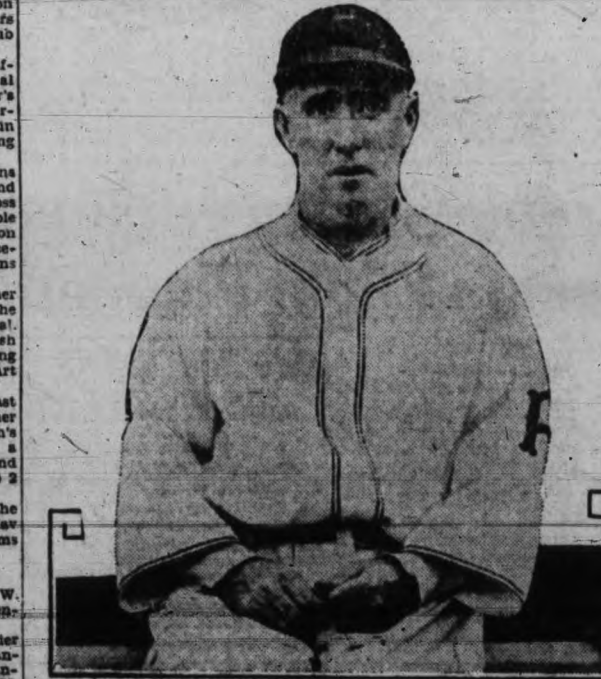

Succeeds Dan Howley, Now With Toronto; No Drastic Changes in Lineup

Cincinnati, Nov. 11.—The job of hauling the newly Cincinnati Reds out of the National League cellar was pinned to-day on the shoulders of Donie Bush, whose teams have finished out of the First Division but twice.

He was given a contract for just one year, but President Sidney Weil said he was confident he had picked the "right man." The new manager, who returns to the National League for the first time since 1927 when he piloted the Pittsburgh Pirates into the world series, announced there would be no drastic changes in the Reds' line-up.

Neither will there be any trades involving Herman, Hafey, Lucas and Grantham, unless the team can be strengthened greatly in vital spots. Bush succeeds Dan Howley, now with Toronto, who for three years tried to get the Reds out of last place.

Two California Boxers and Managers Suspended For Appearing Falsely

"Biddy" Bishop Fined $50 For Making Matches; Loses Position as Matchmaker

Seattle, Nov. 11.—Two San Francisco boxers and their manager were indefinitely suspended by the Seattle Athletic Commission yesterday after an investigation showed that the two boxed here under fictitious names on a card in which four San Francisco men appeared and none lasted their whole bouts.

Men who boxed under the names of "Red News Johnson" and "Jack Garson" were really Ben Garvey and Freddie Goldsmith. "Johnson" was knocked out in the third round by Henry Woods, Yakima lightweight.

In addition, Dolph Thomas, San Francisco manager, was indefinitely suspended for sending the boxers here. George W. (Biddy) Bishop, of the Austin & Bishop Club, was fined $50 for making the matches, and Lonnie Austin of the club will hereafter be recognized as the matchmaker, the commission said.

"BIDDY" BISHOP IS BEING SUED

Louise Werle, High School Senior, Seeks $100,000 From Seattle Promoter

Twenty-year-old Girl Alleges Boxing Official Made Promises of Marriage

Seattle, Nov. 11.—Miss Louise Werle, twenty-year-old high school senior, filed suit in Superior Court this week against George W. "Biddy" Bishop, sixty-four, Seattle boxing promoter, demanding $100,000 on the grounds that he promised to marry her, though he was already wedded; that he induced her to drink and made improper advances.

"There's absolutely not a word of truth in it," Bishop replied. "That's what makes it look like such a big joke to me."

Miss Werle, who resides with her mother at 1813 Franklin Avenue, asserted in her suit that Bishop promised her a beautiful home and luxury if she would consent to marry him three months ago.

She charged he induced her to dine with him in an apartment near his athletic club at Ninth Avenue and Olive Way, September 23, gave her liquor, and made improper advances. She insisted, according to her complaint, but could not tight off the promoter.

Bishop said he never had gone out with Miss Werle; never gave her a drink or dined with her. He knows her only casually, he said.

At the request of Miss Werle's attorney, Gordon E. Metcalfe, Superior Judge Malcolm Douglas yesterday appointed her mother, Mrs. Julia Werle, her guardian to look after the girl's interests in the suit.

One Solution For Light-Heavy Balls

By AL DENABRE

In one of my recent releases I asked for assistance to the yet unresolved mystery of the cause of the "light" and "heavy" ball, whether it is thrown by a baseball player, a football player or a bowler.

Mr. A. B. Bianchino of Houston, Texas, writes me a very plausible theory.

"Usually I throw a 'heavy' ball," he says, "but I can also throw a 'light' ball. However, the 'light' ball is slightly faster. The 'light' ball is thrown with the arm and wrist, but the motion and weight of the body is partly checked an instant before the ball leaves the hand. The 'heavy' ball is thrown only with the arm and with the motion and the weight of the body behind it. Also the 'heavy' ball is heavier when thrown side arm. But the phenomenal feature about the 'light' and 'heavy' ball is that they are both thrown with the same motion of the body, with the ball whirling in the same identical manner. Yet the only difference is that

Running in three winning baskets in the last two minutes of play, Victoria High School Yellow defeated Mount Newton High 21 to 15 in the Lower Island Inter-High Basketball League game, played at the Victoria High gym yesterday afternoon.

The Victorians were two points down at half time. Three minutes from the end they evened up the score and then came through with a fine closing rally to account for the winning tally.

Doug Feder refereed.

The teams and individual scores follow:

Mount Newton—Oakes 1, Thomson 6, Butler 8, May, Greenhalgh and Young.

Victoria High Yellow—Moakes 4, Ritchie 3, Kirkbride 4, McGregor 2, Naysmith 3, Gaunt 6, and Price.

the wrist plays the leading role in the "light" ball while the motion and weight of the body behind the throw, with less wrist movement and a freer swing to the arm is really one true cause of the "heavy" ball.

Fine Football and Rugby Programme Slated To-morrow

Thirteen Matches Will Be Decided On Many Pitches

Six Rugby and Seven Soccer Fixtures Will Be Played in Many Parts of City; Saanich Thistles Oppose Esquimalt in Feature Football Fixture at Lower Beacon Hill; Navy and Oak Bay Wanderers Will Hold Rugby Spotlight With Game at Royal Athletic Park

In the Victoria and District Football League Maccabees will meet the smart Duncan Indians at Heywood Avenue grounds in a Milton Cup fixture. And to round out the sports programme for day, a wrestling card will be held at the Tillicum gym, starting at 8.45 o'clock. All rugby games are scheduled to get under way at 3 o'clock, while soccer players are slated to swing into action a quarter of an hour earlier.

The rugby fixture list follows:

SENIOR A LEAGUE

Navy vs. Oak Bay Wanderers at Royal Athletic Park. Referee Bill Ellis.

SENIOR B LEAGUE

Victoria College vs. Fifth Brigade. Referee Bill Derbyshire.

INTERMEDIATES

Victoria College vs. Fifth Brigade. Referee Walls.

Canadian Scottish vs. Wanderers, Oak Bay Park. Referee F. A. Sparks.

The games will see all teams clashing for the first time in official fixtures this season. The sailors are conceded a victory over the Wanderers in the first division but the remainder of the battles promise to be bang-up games, although the earliness of the season may account for a certain amount of ruggedness.

The Wanderers will field the following teams for their games:

Senior A—K. Symons; Thornbury, Acland, Ellis, Haynes, Golby, Gann, Campbell, N. Symons, Wray, Plant, McGregor, King, Hood and Douglas.

Senior B—Christy, Meade-Robins, Beck, Mabey, Laver, Carmichael, Letta, Harston, Croft, Hall, Martin, Coultas, Duncan, Robertson and Garman.

Intermediate—Melville, Cornall, Simpson, Marshall, J. Shepherd, McConnan, Coomber, J. Golby, Overton, Hotham, Linklater, Angus, F. Shepherd, Allan, Wheldon. Reserves—Barnes and Woodward.

The Coast League first division soccer game at lower Beacon Hill between the Thistles and Esquimalt will see the former attempting to increase their lead at the head of the standings, and Esquimalt striving to creep closer to the leaders. The Saanich eleven is out in front by two and a half games over the Dockers and a win to-morrow will put them in a much stronger position. Should Esquimalt win they will be within easy striking distance of the top eleven. Robb will be the referee.

In the second division of the Coast League two fixtures will be played with the Thistles playing Esquimalt at Central Park and the Wests meeting Victoria City at upper Beacon Hill.

Matches scheduled to-morrow in the Junior League follow:

Royal Oak vs. Oaklands at Reynolds' Field. Referee Bundock.

James Island vs. Jokers at James

PACT HITS B.C. HARD

It was explained that Premier Tolmie had not realized anything so disastrous to B.C. industry was being put over when he stayed at Ottawa several weeks boosting for the agreements when the Ottawa conference was on.

Peace was expected here to-day that the B.C. copper industry would face a shut-down until new markets are opened for its products in the Orient or other foreign parts, if no new trade agreement covering the production is possible with Britain or United States.

It was explained that the British are now developing their own great copper deposits in Africa and elsewhere, their lower production costs, the British producers will eventually be able to out Canadian copper from their own market, even without the aid of preferential duties.

In the meantime, while the British producers are building up their production, they are reported as welcoming the elimination of the Canadian competition by means of its exclusion under the preference regulations.

UP AGAINST HIGH COSTS

Possibility of smelting British Columbia copper ores at the plant of the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company at Trail, B.C., were discussed at the Parliament Buildings. However, it was found that smelting there was impracticable because of the high costs. Unless copper were selling at 12 cents a pound or more, it would be impossible to come out clear by sending copper ores or concentrates by rail to Trail and then freight the copper back to the coast. Such high costs, it was pointed out, would put British Columbia copper completely out of the running with copper from the new British African fields or other low cost producing areas in the world.

Establishment of a smelter on the British Columbia coast was also discussed, but this was also found to be impracticable for some time to come. Production from British Columbia mines contiguous to the lower coast territory, would have to reach many times the volume of present production to make such a smelter pay, it was found. It was explained that the Tacoma smelter even is not able to operate on full time, although it has been handling the combined ore volume from Washington, Oregon, and most of the British Columbia coast.

Talk of a government subsidy for a smelter or a bonus to meet the freight costs by rail to the Trail plant was not encouraged because in either case the sums of money required would be so large that it would not be a policy of sound economics, even if the government were able to raise the money. On top of this, there was doubt whether the production could be sold profitably in competition with the new low cost British production.

WAS EMPIRE'S LARGEST

Until recently the Howe Sound Company, operating at Britannia Beach, a few miles north of Vancouver, was the largest copper producer in the British Empire. Its production was 30,000,000 pounds of copper a year. The ore was milled at a great plant at Britannia Beach and the concentrates smelted at the Tacoma smelter and sent on to the English and European markets.

OTTAWA AIDS WHEAT POOL

Prairie Farmers Much Interested in Bennett's Statement Next Monday

Advancing of Federal Funds For Purchases at Winnipeg Is Factor

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Nov. 11.—A statement will be made by Premier Bennett in the Commons next Monday as to what the attitude of the Dominion Government has been in relation to the wheat market. When the price of wheat broke some weeks ago the rumor was spread the government had been previously supporting the market. Explaining to the House yesterday, Premier Bennett said:

"We have made very large advances to western provinces during the last few months. We have loaned them large sums of money and carried on enormous expenditures. In addition the question was asked the other day whether the government had brought grain to the market. I am glad to answer now that I may say that the government has not itself purchased grain, but did assist one of the enterprises that is owned by the people of western Canada to do so for reasons that I shall indicate next Monday."

EYES ON OTTAWA

Winnipeg, Nov. 11.—From proposals for a nation-wide farm strike in the spring of 1953, if agriculturists are relieved of many present-day burdens, attention turned to-day to Ottawa.

"Two statements made in the Commons by Premier Bennett drew the attention of agriculturists and grain trade authorities.

One confirmed rumors of government stabilization efforts on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange and the other in the minds of grain and shipping authorities, failed to clear up the doubt that existed on the shipment of Canadian grain to the United Kingdom.

In the Commons to-day, Premier Bennett declared the government had not purchased wheat to sustain the market, but had assisted one western organization to do so.

It is general knowledge on the Grain Exchange, among the many traders, that the Canadian Co-operative Wheat Producers Limited, central selling agency for the prairie wheat, is the western agency.

Wheat Pool, is the western agency. Granted funds by the Dominion Government, John I. McFarland, general manager of the co-operative, is said to be the man behind the stabilization scheme and the purchase of large quantities of wheat in the local pit.

Pool authorities to-day refused comment, preferring to await the further announcement by the royal warrant, which was made on Monday.

The late October break in grain prices here, which crashed wheat values to all-time low records during two days of rapid declines, was attributed by the market to withdrawal of federal support from the market.

Stabilization had been resorted to, it was reported, in an effort to maintain a fifty-cent level for the May futures.

At the time, traders, especially United States interests, feared the withdrawal of government support from the market, and in its place, a demand for wheat bonus to prairie agrarians. The wheat for the bonus was not met, but it is still before the government for their demands.

Reports were current the government support had been withdrawn, and in a two-day campaign of quick selling, the market was depressed below the fifty-cent level for the May futures.

BRITISH MAKE COPPER RILING

Canadian Ores Smelted in the U.S. Definitely Removed From Preference List

Refining in Bond of Matt Or Blister Copper to Be Allowed, However

Canadian Press

Nelson, B.C., Nov. 11.—Copper smelted in Canada and shipped in bond to the United States for refining will be removed from the preference list under the free trade agreement between the Imperial Economic Conference at Ottawa recently, but copper smelted in the United States from Canadian ores will not have the preference, and will be subject to the duty of four cents a pound, which the United Kingdom will levy on its foreign copper imports.

Interpretation given to W. K. Eling, Conservative, West Kootenay, now in Ottawa and contained in a special dispatch to the Nelson News from the capital to-day.

Canada and northern Rhodesia are particularly concerned in the United Kingdom regulations. Under the preference on empire, copper, and Mr. Eling has made a study of these regulations in view of their effect on British Columbia copper properties.

The British Columbia member informed that copper matt and blister copper produced in Canada and shipped to the United States to be refined lose its identity when it crosses the line, and cannot be returned to this country as a refined product without payment of the Canadian duty of one and a half cents per pound.

Copper matt and blister copper produced in Canada and sent to a foreign country to be refined in bond will be granted a preference of free entry into the United Kingdom under the Ottawa conference agreements, as against a duty of four cents per pound on copper from foreign countries. The preference does not apply to any Canadian ore smelted in the United States. This virtually means that copper matt and blister copper from Anyox will continue to be smelted at Anyox and shipped by water through the Panama Canal to New Jersey.

On the other hand the Howe Sound Mining Company near Vancouver has four cents duty on copper imposed by the United States. It was able to ship concentrate to Tacoma to be smelted.

Unless it can be made commercially possible to ship concentrate to Trail to be smelted and refined, or unless it can be arranged that the Granby Company smelt Howe Sound ore at Anyox, the company will have to close or take steps toward the construction of a smelter at the coast.

The status of the United Kingdom preference accorded to copper produced in any of the Dominions and refined in bond in foreign countries has been somewhat vague until it was officially stated that the United Kingdom regulations had been amended so as to apply the preference to copper produced and smelted within the empire, although refined in bond in a country outside the empire.

The amended regulations were not for the purpose of meeting the case of Canadian copper only, but resulted from the desire for uniform agreement between the United Kingdom and all the Dominions. Especially did it affect northern Rhodesia copper, because, while there is the most common smelting plant in that country, there is no refinery south of the equator, and it is necessary to ship Rhodesian copper matt and blister to New Jersey, where it is refined in bond and then marketed in the United Kingdom under the preference.

Fair-weather Friends Can't Stand Acid
Tests of Loyalty, But They Make Daily
Life Mighty Pleasant—Why Not Accept
Them at Face Value, Since Real Friends
Are As Rare and Precious As Pearls?

A POOLISH young girl asks me what tests she can apply to her friends to determine whether they are true friends or not. To which I can only reply: Better not. Don't put friendship under the microscope. Don't apply the acid to it to find out if it is a pinch-beak or pure gold. Don't put a strain upon it to ascertain its strength. Just take it at its face value and enjoy it. Believe in the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow as long as you can. There are a lot of beautiful things put in the world for its adornment and our enjoyment, that are never meant for hard, daily usage. We are not expected to make a scrubbing brush out of the painted wings of the butterfly.

Of course, sooner or later, life does try out our friends for us. Poverty, sickness, sorrow, death, age come to us. We are no longer gay and amusing companions. We are shabby instead of richly dressed. Our tables are only spread with meagre fare instead of groaning under rich banquets. Our homes are places of mourning instead of houses of mirth. Then it is that our hosts of near-friends fade away and we are fortunate if one or two are left who are faithful and true and whom no misfortune can alienate from us.

It is the custom to be very contemptuous of these fair-weather friends. But this is a mistake. They are a part of the amenities of life and add to its delights. They serve their purpose in the general scheme of things and help make existence a pleasanter thing than it would be without them.

Perhaps Mrs. A's friendship is of the kind that offers us caviar and champagne when we are prosperous, but would never give us a loaf of bread if we were poor and hungry, but she makes an amusing and entertaining dinner guest and we can laugh at her witty sallies. Perhaps Mrs. B's friendship is of the sort that will joyride with us in an automobile, but would never tread the dark road of grief with us; but she is fun and helps make our parties go. Perhaps the temperance of Mr. C's friendship rises and falls with our standing in the bank, well, at any rate, he is a jolly good fellow and plays an admirable hand of bridge.

And, after all, isn't this about all that we have wanted of these fair-weather friends? Just entertainments and suavity and making themselves agreeable and showing us a few pleasant attentions? And isn't it about all that we had a right to expect of them? And isn't it supervenient that makes us think that we inspire a deathless passion in the breast of every casual acquaintance that would cause them to sacrifice themselves for us and stick to us through thick and thin?

Certainly very few of us have such an irresistible power of fascination that we bind every one with whom we come in contact to us with hoops of steel. Most of us are fortunate if those we meet feel even a passing liking for us. John Hay once said that even the most popular among us would die of chagrin if we knew what our neighbors really thought of us.

So we can easily perceive the folly of attempting to test out our friends and find out exactly how strong is their affection for us. The chances are too great that they think no more of us than we do of them and that they would be no more faithful to us than we would be to them in a time of stress and storm. For we too are fair-weather friends to many people, delighted to exchange a chop for a chop with them, but not to divide our last bite with them.

One of the queer things about friendship is that we regard it as a sort of a graft on which we always expect to get more than we give. We expect our friends to love us better than we love them, to pay us more attention than we pay them, to be true to us than we are to them, and when they fail to do this we call them false and grow bitter about it.

Yet how many friends have we for whom we would make a real sacrifice? Perhaps none. Perhaps one or two at most. Yet we expect all those with whom we have played around to be willing to fight our battles for us, pay our debts for us and to whitewash our names when we cover them with alms.

Abundant. Real friends are as rare as flawless pearls and as valuable and hard to come by. Lucky those who find one friend whose heart cleaves unto them as David's did to Jonathan's.

But for those who lack this jewel of price there is consolation in the hosts of agreeable and amusing near-friends we all have—synthetic pearls if you like—but who add to the adornment of life.

But only the foolhardy test their friends or their pearls to try to find out whether they are real or not.

Armistice Day

Twelve years ago, at 11 o'clock in the morning of the eleventh day of the eleventh month of the year, an agreement was signed in France. This agreement is known as "The Armistice," and it marked the end of fighting in the most terrible war of all history.

Scene in La Salle Street, Chicago, when people celebrated the Armistice

People who were alive during that war knew the horror of it whether they were at the front or behind the lines. Millions of men suffered, and millions of men died. Women lost their husbands, children lost their fathers. The slaughter was going on and on. It seemed as though there might be no end to it—but then came Armistice Day!

There are no words to describe fully the feelings of human beings when they learned that the fighting was past. All through war-torn Europe, all through Canada, Australia and the United States, people were in a fever over what had happened, over what had stopped.

Teachers smiling upon them, walked away for a holiday. From the windows of tall office buildings came forth streams of white paper, torn into bits and sent fluttering down on the heads of the throngs who were marching along the central streets. I say "marching," but I might better say walking or struggling to walk. The crowds were so large that there was not enough space to move freely, but people did not mind that. They laughed when they bumped into one another. For that brief spell, at least, it seemed that all people were brothers and sisters, members of a single family united by a common joy. What was this terror from which the people felt that they had escaped? It was the World War, a struggle which had cost the lives of more men than have been counted. To this day, those who deal with figures are not agreed on the exact number of soldiers killed; but we may safely say that more than 7,500,000 men lost their lives in addition to more than 20,000,000 who were wounded.

On this day, we may highly resolve that there shall never be another World War.

SOCIALISTS IN GENEVA PROTEST

Associated Press
 Geneva, Nov. 11.—Geneva Socialists today decided against a general strike, but arranged a day of protest and mourning for to-morrow, the anniversary of a riot in which eleven persons were killed on Wednesday. The government, seeking to avoid manifestations at funerals, announced the dead would be given burial separately at the expense of the state. The night was quiet with no hint of a renewal of disorders, although gunshots and soldiers were on the alert.

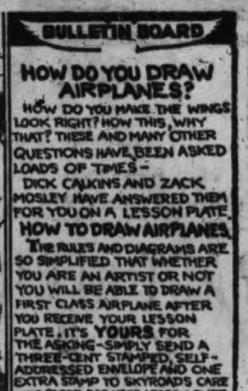

WET MOVE IS ALARM CAUSE

Seattle, Nov. 11.—Seattle physicians regard repeal of the state bone dry law with considerable misgiving, a newspaper survey has revealed. Under the federal law, which will control liquor dispensing after December 8, physicians may use six quarts of liquor a year for personal administration to patients and may issue 100 prescriptions every ninety days for not more than one pint of liquor at a time.

A number of doctors said they would probably not apply for a license, hoping to avoid the nuisance of issuing prescriptions. They held the practice would not aid practitioners economically. Others feared a few physicians might abuse the system and bring criticism on the whole profession.

But Two Anglican Missionaries Still Missing From Ss. Southern Cross

Suva, Fiji Islands, Nov. 11.—After four days of hardship on one of the numerous coral reefs near here, four officers, three engineers and the crew of fifteen Solomon Islanders from the Ms. Southern Cross, a London mission ship, which sank last week-end, are safe and will arrive here in a few days. It was reported today. The fate of the two Anglican missionaries who were aboard, remains unknown and grave fears are felt for their safety.

The rescued members of the ship's crew had a narrow escape from death following the sinking of their vessel. They swam through shark-infested waters until they reached one of the unnumbered coral reefs. Utterly tired they managed to climb up on the rocks and rest for a day or two. Now they are on their way to Suva. According to meagre details received here, all the rescued members of the crew suffered severe injuries during their struggles to land through the huge waves and the pounding surf.

One of the missing Anglican clergymen has been identified as Rev. R. de Vill, a former London curate, but the name of the other could not be learned here today.

The Southern Cross, a 140-foot motorship, with a displacement of 220 tons, sank during a violent hurricane. Her officers, crew and the two missionaries, were said to have reached a small unnamed island and to have left it Monday for the island of Vila, aboard a small launch.

For four days the launch and the men had been missing and hope was beginning to wane for their safety when news of their appearance reached this port.

The Southern Cross VI, a virtual floating church, was on her maiden voyage from London and was designed for use throughout the islands west of the Great Barrier Reef, and from the Australian coast to the Southern Pacific.

Some hope was held out that the missing men might be sighted and picked up by one of the ships plying between the islands.

The Southern Cross left London several months ago, following dedication ceremonies at which the Bishop of London presided. She voyaged out to the South Sea by way of the Mediterranean, India and the Southern Pacific.

John Cormode of the American Mail Line, chosen first vice-president, Capt. J. Howard Payne of the Ballard-Ludlow Ferry Company, second vice-president, and R. E. Brown of the General Steamship Corporation, secretary-treasurer. New trustees are George Cary of the Puget Sound Tug and Barge Company, Carl Strout of the Pacific Steamship Company and W. R. Vanderbilt of W. R. Grace and Company.

Capt. Hall advances from the position of vice-president after the adjournment of the meeting of the Puget Sound Tug and Barge Company. The organization plunged immediately into business affairs after the adjournment of the election. A protest against any limitation of the speed of vessels in Seattle Harbor was voted after a general discussion, and President Hall was authorized to present the stand of the association at the hearing before the United States district engineer later in the day. It was voted that the organization, through a committee, should check on the status of the improvements to the waterfront and also as to the new name for Railroad Avenue.

With a passenger list of twenty-five and a cargo of canned salmon, frozen fish and other Alaskan products, the motorship Northland of the Northland Transportation Company arrived this morning.

The vessel will sail again Monday at 9 a.m. for southeastern ports, including Sitka.

SAYS GRAIN SHIP PURPOSELY SUNK

Ottawa, Nov. 11.—Declaration a ship was "deliberately sunk" in Hudson Straits after spending two days looking around for an iceberg, was made in the House of Commons yesterday by B. M. Stitt, Conservative member for Nelson, Manitoba. The member, whose constituency includes the new Hudson Bay port of Churchill, was discussing the development of the Hudson Bay route in connection with grain shipments under the Canada-United Kingdom trade treaty.

"In Churchill we are in the same position to-day as Montreal was," said Mr. Stitt. "There are no marine handicaps in Hudson Bay or Straits, in spite of the fact that we lost a boat, a boat that looked around for two days before it found an iceberg."

Some exclamations brought from Mr. Stitt the rejoinder: "There is no question about that. That boat was deliberately sunk." Armand Lavigne, in the chair, called for "order," and Mr. Stitt continued: "I have evidence here to prove."

Winnipeg, Nov. 11.—While the marketing and loading of wheat along the lines of the Canadian National are less for the seven-day period ending Wednesday, as compared with the same period last year, the total car loadings since the beginning of the crop year, August 1, to date, approximate $6,000, an increase of more than 10,000 over the corresponding period in 1931. Wheat in store, according to a statement issued today by the car service department on the grain situation, is shown as 40,621,000 bushels, which compares with 35,140,000 for the same period a year ago.

Special to The Times
Nanaimo, Nov. 11.—Murray A. E. Planta, was beaten and robbed by a lone bandit at 9:30 o'clock yesterday evening his office on Commercial Street. Mr. Planta was coming up from the basement, where he had been attending to the furnace, when he was confronted by his assailant.

Before he could protect himself he was struck over the head with a sandbag or heavy instrument and fell down the stairs. While Mr. Planta was unconscious on the basement floor the robber secured his pocketbook, containing $120 and also his watch and chain, valued at $500.

When Mr. Planta was found some time later by Jerry McGill, night patrolman, he was still unconscious. The patrolman found the office in darkness and the door open. He summoned police officers and carried the unconscious man upstairs, where he gave first aid.

Mr. Planta's injuries are not considered serious. Mr. Planta stated he could not see his assailant as the office was in darkness. The only contents being Mr. Planta's driving license and business cards.

Fire investigation has been increased during the year under review. W. A. Walker, deputy fire marshal in charge of fire investigation, investigated 207 fires reported as of suspicious origin and held or assisted at twenty-five inquiries, the report states. As a result of these investigations five persons were charged with arson. Three charges of conspiracy to defraud insurance companies were laid, two convictions were secured and three cases are before the courts.

"It is pleasing to note, however, that only 1.75 per cent of the total fires were found to be of incendiary origin," the report adds. The moral hazard in the province from an insurance standpoint is considered excellent.
